HADLEY WANTS STATE TO TAX INHERITANCES

Governor Sends Special Message to Legislature Asking for Revenue.

MUCH MONEY NEEDED

Suggestion for Raising More Funds by Increased Tax on Liquor Dealers.

LICENSE FOR CLUBS

Radical Change in Coal Oil Inspection System Is Also Strongly Advised.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 15.—Declaring that the State's revenue was inadequate by one and one-half million dollars to meet appropriations for State institutions in 1908, Gov. Hadley sent a special message to the Legislature today urging the enactment of an inheritance tax law, licenses for wholesale and retail liquor dealers other than dramshops, and the imposition of a State license tax on wholesale and retail tobacco dealers. A higher license for automobiles also is recommended.

After reviewing the various revenue producing measures before the Assembly, the Governor says: "It is important that an inheritance tax should be imposed by the statutes. The National Government is confronted with the necessity of raising more revenue, and both President Roosevelt and President Taft have recommended to the National Congress that it impose a graduated tax upon direct and collateral inheritances.

Revenue Belongs to States.

"I feel that this source or subject of taxation does not belong to the National Government, but belongs to the several states.

"The property which the individual owns and which goes at his death to his descendants is protected by State laws and is transmitted under State laws. The National Government has other special sources or subjects of taxation of which it can avail itself which are not open to the State.

"But unless the states act promptly in this matter, we are likely to find that the National Government has appropriated this source of subject of taxation and it will thereby become unavailable to the states to which it naturally and rightfully belongs. A tax upon inheritances collateral or direct, is now imposed by 34 states.

License Tax for Clubs.

"In addition to these two sources or subjects of taxation, I feel that there should also be enacted into laws, bills now pending before you imposing a license tax upon wholesale and retail dealers in intoxicating liquors, other than dram shops, including clubs and voluntary associations. Such a law is not only necessary and advisable, from the standpoint of gaining additional revenue, subjecting to taxation franchises and privileges which now escape taxation, but it is also advisable and necessary from the standpoint of regulating the conduct of the liquor traffic.

"A license tax could also be fairly imposed by the State upon wholesale and retail tobacco dealers, and upon owners of automobiles.

"There are also bills pending before the General Assembly imposing a tax for the inspection of spirituous liquors. I know of no reason why such a tax should not be imposed upon spirituous liquors, as the State now receives about $841,000 in revenue each biennial period as a tax for the inspection of malt liquors.

Tax for Liquor Inspection.

"Unless some good reason can be offered for this discrimination those engaged in the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors should be required to contribute their proper proportion of the expenses of government by paying a tax for the inspection of spirituous liquors.

"A bill has also been introduced in this General Assembly doing away with the present system for the inspection of kerosene and gasoline. Under the provisions of the present law, the coal oil inspectors are appointed in the various counties and cities of the State, but only one, the inspector in the City of St. Louis, turns into the State treasury any revenue as the result of charges imposed for this inspection.

"There are approximately 200 coal oil inspectors in the State who receive from $500 to $7000 a year as fees for the performance of their duties. The State gets no return from these inspection charges, and the inspection itself is of little or no protection to the people. I strongly recommend that this present farcical system be discontinued and that the bill now pending before you providing for State coal oil inspector and a sufficient number of deputies to enable him to perform his duties be enacted into law so that gasoline, as well as kerosene, may be subjected to a proper and reasonable inspection, and that the State may also derive from this source its proper return in the way of inspection fees."

"It was an awful drop," said the man who got on at Jefferson avenue.

"Oh, I don't know," said the man who got on at Grand avenue; "I've seen weather change lots more than this over night."

"He doesn't mean the weather," said the man who got on at King's highway. "He means the way the bottom fell out of the anti-Cannon movement."

"Guess again," said the man who got on at Jefferson avenue. "I meant it was an awful drop that the registration took out here in Lawler Daley's ward."

The official weather forecast:

FORBIDDEN TO WED MAN SHE LOVED, DIES SINGLE AT 94

Miss Magdalena Strang Made Vow 76 Years Ago Never to Marry.

Forbidden by her mother, because of religious differences, to marry the man she loved, Miss Magdalena Strang made a vow to remain single as long as she lived.

That was 76 years ago. She kept that vow, and loved unwedded until she died, at the age of 94 years and 9 months, in East St. Louis Sunday.

"Aunt Maggie," as the aged woman was affectionately known to neighbors, had made her home for seven years with Mrs. J. C. Kircher of 569 North Eighteenth street, East St. Louis.

A few years ago she abandoned the use of spectacles, gaining what is known as her "second eyesight." She was able to read and sew without glasses until a few days ago.

While her death was attributed to the natural infirmities of old age, it is believed to have been hastened by an injury to one of her toes. She bumped the toe, and a slight blood poisoning resulted.

The funeral will be held from the Kircher home Tuesday afternoon, followed by burial in Mount Hope Cemetery.

"MAN WITH GOLDEN NOSE" DIES; TOLD WHISKY'S AGE BY SMELL

Patrick Lamphear Could Even Detect Brand by Aroma and Drew Large Salary.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 15.—Patrick Lamphear, one of the most widely known Bourbon whisky experts of America, died here last night. His skill in determining the quality of whisky and the large salary paid him had gained for him the sobriquet of the "man with the golden nose."

Mr. Lamphear, because of his many years of study and experience, and his acute sense of smell, became so proficient in discriminating between the delicate aromas which arise from old liquors and in detecting the distinguishing fragrance of the various brands that it was said he could tell by their odor the age and brand of the different whiskies.

He was born in Ireland 65 years ago. Pneumonia was the cause of his death.

PROFESSOR SUED BY CHORUS GIRL FOR A DIVORCE

Former Member of Anna Held Company Infatuated Gray-Haired Teacher.

SEPARATED AT ALTAR

Made Up Later and Now Wife Charges Husband With Cruelty.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Pupils of the De Witt Clinton High School were astonished this morning to learn that their professor of biology, Dr. Richard Ellsworth Call, is being sued for divorce by a former member of Anna Held's company.

The suit reveals the infatuation of a gray-haired professor of most benign appearance for a chorus girl, their trial marriage, separation at the altar, suit for annulment of their marriage, reconciliation and the final breach which has culminated in the suit for divorce.

Mr. Call was assistant professor of natural sciences in the University of Missouri one year, 1885-6. He differed with Prof. J. W. Spencer, the ranking professor on some scientific question and lost his position at the end of the year on that account.

He was married at that time. He was considered authority on snails and had a fine collection of shells. He was a church worker and his family life appeared ideal. His first wife died before he met his present spouse.

Mrs. Call was known as Bijou Charlmet when she appeared in the chorus of "The Little Duchess." She is a fascinating girl of French extraction, who became known to many members of exclusive New York society while she was a manicure at the Hotel St. Regis. When she met Prof. Call he was curator of the Children's Museum in Redford Park, between Brooklyn and Kingston avenues. He had recently divorced his first wife, who returned to her home in David City, Neb.

Separated at the Altar.

Prof. Call lost his heart to the girl, and after an ardent wooing and his gifts to her, he says, of $5000 and $1000 worth of jewelry, they were married in April, 1906, in Montclair, N. J.

But what promised so much happiness ended abruptly. The professor's fair young bride, so he says, left him at the altar, telling him he would have to prove for a year his ability to support her suitably before she would live with him. Heartbroken, he let her go her way, and did not see her again until almost two years later.

Hearing that she was living in West One Hundred and Sixth street, he says, he called to try to win her back, but was forcibly ejected from the house. Then she disappeared again, he says, and he applied for an annulment of the marriage on the ground that she had committed a fraud on him.

Made Her Drink Brandy.

That suit brought her to light again, and when she sent for him to come to her at Bay Shore, Long Island, he yielded, and for a few months they lived together more or less happily. They then separated again and this time it is the wife who is bringing suit. She accuses him of making her drink brandy and of ill-treating her, but this Prof. Call flatly denies.

Mrs. Call denies that the professor gave her $5000 or anything like that amount, and says that since their separation she has received only $30 from him.

CHLOROFORMED BY BURGLARS; HOME ROBBED

Woman's Handkerchief Left Covering Face of Mrs. William J. Frank.

A woman's handkerchief, with the initial "J." embroidered in one corner, was found covering the face of Mrs. Mary Frank, when her husband, William J. Frank, awakened her, after discovering that burglars had chloroformed them both and robbed their home at 5325 Wells avenue of jewelry valued at $2760.

The handkerchief is one which Mrs. Frank never saw before. It is small, and of inexpensive material. The improbability of a man carrying such a handkerchief has suggested to Mr. and Mrs. Frank, and to the police, that a woman may have assisted in the burglary.

The husband, who found his aching head covered with a drug-saturated towel when he awoke long after his accustomed time Sunday morning, remembered that he had offered Saturday night, in a crowd of strangers, to bet $10,000 on Kreismann's election to the mayoralty.

Probably Followed From Saloon.

Frank said Monday that he thought he might have been followed to his home from the Easton avenue saloon where he made the offer of a wager. Several men, he said, left the place just after he did.

That at least one man took part in the burglary was indicated by the deep indentations of a jimmy with which the tightly fastened dining room window of the Frank home had been pried open. This took a strong wrist.

Frank, who is a director in the Jacob Frank Mercantile Co., 821 North Sixth street, went to bed at 1 a. m. Sunday. He is accustomed to sleep not more than five hours, and arises at 6 a. m. on Sundays as on week days.

It was 8:35 a. m. Sunday when he awoke, his temples throbbing, and lifted a pungent-smelling towel from his face. His eyes smarted, and as he looked about he saw at once that his room had been ransacked.

The bureau drawers were open, and two satchels, which had contained most of Mr. and Mrs. Frank's valuables, stood open and empty in the middle of the floor, where they had been dragged from a closet.

Found His Wife Unconscious.

As Frank realized that he had been chloroformed and robbed, he stepped from his room, which is the rear of two bedrooms, to that occupied by his wife, next the dining room. He saw her lying motionless, the small handkerchief across her face. He threw the bit of cloth upon the floor, and, opening a window, let in the air.

His wife, half awakened, put her hands to her head and uttered a cry of pain. She was dizzy, and was not able at first to arise.

When they went back to the husband's room and examined the bureau and the closet, they found that the burglars had taken $45 in cash from a box, $6 from one of the satchels, and all the jewelry. The articles of jewelry, with their valuation by Mr. and Mrs. Frank, were:

Only One Room Ransacked.

One pair of diamond cuff buttons, cost $200; sunburst, five diamonds, $750; pair earrings, two karats, $600; diamond ring, three sets, one of one and a half karat and two of one-half karat, $500; breastpin, two and a half karats, $400; tourquoise and diamond ring, $200; diamond shirtwaist buttons, $75; tortoise shell combs, $35.

No evidence of ransacking was found except in Frank's bedroom. Apparently the burglars, after chloroforming Mrs. Frank, looked about her room and decided that the valuables were elsewhere, then went to the husband's room. A gas jet which Frank had left burning in the hall near Mrs. Frank's door was turned out by the burglars, probably just before they left the house.

The dining room opens into a hall along which the two bedrooms are situated. Apparently the burglars left as they entered, by the dining room window.

The towel the burglars placed over Frank's face was one they had taken from the bathroom. They left no clew behind but the woman's handkerchief.

"BELL HOP," WHO WAS "SAVING KID," BUYS OWN HOTEL

Peter Hyde, Who Put Away $3000 During St. Louis Fair, Pays $5000 Down.

Peter Hyde, 26 years old, who saved $3000 while working as a Hotel Jefferson bell boy during the World's Fair, has bought the "Y" Hotel at Davis Junction, Ill., says a press dispatch from Cincinnati, where the young bell boy capitalist has been working as "captain" of the Sinton Hotel "bell hops."

The Illinois Hotel was bought for $12,000, young Hyde told an interviewer, of which price he paid $5000 in cash. He has left Cincinnati to take charge of his new business venture.

"Pete always was after the money," said Otto E. Sonnenberg, room clerk at the Jefferson Hotel Monday, "and he usually got it. I'm satisfied that he had as much as $5000 to put into any venture he wanted to go into. And I know he had something in mind, for he wrote me two or three weeks ago that he had a plan underway but that he wasn't quite ready to talk about it. He said he wanted to take me in with him when he was ready.

"He was a saving kid always. He came here from Yonkers, N. Y., shortly before the Fair and worked as a bell boy throughout the Fair. Then he got to be cashier. Several boys saved a lot of money during the Fair.

"Tim Murray saved $2000. He went east and is now either at the Waldorf-Astoria or the Lakewood House at Lakewood, N. J. Manley Wright, who was a page boy during the Fair, saved a big bunch of money, too, I don't know just how much."

Sonneberg and Hyde were associates in one unsuccessful business venture. That was at Barstow, Tex., where they started a hotel some time after the Fair.

"Pete got married while we were down there," says Sonnenberg. "His wife was a St. Louis girl who had moved to El Paso. When he got married I sold out my share in the hotel—it wasn't a money maker—and came back to St. Louis. He hung on till the panic and then the bank he had all his savings in failed.

"I think the bank gave him a piece of land instead of the money he had on deposit and I guess he's sold that land and the hotel. He went to Maine, I know, and worked a while, and then to Cincinnati. He always was ambitious to own his own hotel."

BABY FINDS HER MOTHER'S BODY HANGING IN ATTIC

Woman Hangs Herself to Rafter, Kicking Chair From Under Her Feet.

Four-year-old Katherine Dangler played on the dining room floor at her home, 4134 Schiller place, for nearly an hour after her mother, whose namesake she is, had gone upstairs. Then the baby, John, 5 months old, began to cry, and little Adele, 3 years old, who had been asleep, awoke and grew restless.

"Mamma!" called little Katherine. There was no answer. With her smaller sister toddling after her, the child ascended the stairs.

It was hard to enter the door of the garret, but Katherine pushed back the chair which stood against the door and peeped in.

Her mother was not there, the little girl thought at first. Instead there was something in the middle of the room, in a dress like her mother's, reaching from just a little below the rafter to just a little above the floor.

"Mis' Paulus," cried little Katherine to a neighbor a moment later, "won't you come over to our house? My mamma's gone upstairs and I can't find her."

Mrs. Mary Paulus and Mrs. Susanna Sharashi, who live in the two houses next the Dangler home, went in with the girl. They found the mother's body, which had been dead nearly an hour. She had hanged herself by a clothes line to the rafter, kicking away the chair on which she stood.

The husband and father, John Dangler, was called from his place of employment, the Anheuser-Busch Brewery. Neighbors said they knew of no cause for the suicide. Mrs. Dangler was 31 years old.

TAFT SENDS PICTURE AND GREETINGS TO LOG CABIN CLUB

A photograph of President Taft with an autograph message of good will penned on it has been received by the Log Cabin Club at which the President was a guest on visits to St. Louis before his election.

As an incident to the inauguration a telegram was sent to the President by former Gov. Francis on behalf of the club, congratulating him and asking for a photograph. The picture received was in response to the message.

The President, in the note at the bottom of the picture, says he sends it in "grateful recollection of the hospitality enjoyed at the Log Cabin Club," which he wishes a long and prosperous life.

CANNON ELECTED SPEAKER; LOSES FIGHT FOR RULES

Illinoisan Receives 204 Votes, Twelve Insurgent Republicans Scattering Their Strength.

THROGS IN GALLERIES WATCH LEGISLATIVE WAR

Democrats in Caucus Pledge Themselves to Fight for Reform of Rules by Enlargement of Committee From Five to Fifteen Members.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Following the re-election of Speaker Cannon to preside over the House of Representatives during the Sixty-first Congress, the Cannon or regular Republican organization in the House suffered an unexpected defeat when its attempt to adopt the old rules of order which have made the Speaker czar was voted down by a vote of 189 to 193.

This was a victory for the combined forces of the Republican insurgents, led by Representative Murdock of Kansas, and the Democrats, led by Minority Leader Clark.

After the adoption of the old rules had been prevented, Minority Leader Clark offered a resolution providing for a committee of 15 to amend the rules, the present rules with modifications to be used pending the committee's revision. This was voted down and then the House began a length ydebate on plans to amend the rules submitted by Fitzgerald (Dem.) of New York.

The voting down of the motion to adopt the old rules was especially a surprise because a moment before the House had voted for the previous question on the adoption of the rules and this it was supposed ended the fight.

Cannon Nominated.

In the House 382 members responded to their names, more than a quorum. Immediately after announcement of a quorum was made, Mr. Currier (New Hampshire) nominated Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois for Speaker and Mr. Clayton (Alabama) presented the name of Champ Clark of Missouri, both under instructions of their respective caucuses. As the names of Messrs. Cannon and Clark were put in nomination their respective partisans gave way to applause. The roll was then called.

Mr. Cary (Wisconsin), one of the insurgents when his name was called, voted for his colleague, Henry A. Cooper, also an insurgent, who, in turn, voted for George W. Norris of Nebraska. Mr. Cooper received another vote from Mr. Davis of Minnesota.

Through inadvertance Mr. Ellerbe, (Democrat of South Carolina), voted in a loud voice for Cannon, but he immediately made a correction and voted for Clark. His mistake created such a storm of laughter that he beat a hasty retreat to the cloak room.

Insurgents Scatter.

Mr. Hinshaw (Nebraska) gave his vote to Norris, while Hubbard, of Iowa, favored Cooper. Mr. Kopp (Wisconsin) cast his vote for Mr. Esch, his colleague. Mr. Lenroot (Wisconsin) voted for Cooper, while Lindkermh (Minnesota) recorded himself for W. P. Hepburn, of Iowa, an ex-member.

Four more votes were added to the Cooper column when Messrs. Morse, Nelson and Poindexter (Wisconsin), and Murdock (Kansas), announced themselves for him. None of the candidates whose names were presented voted for himself, although with the exception of Mr. Cannon they were all present.

Opposing Sides Cheer and Wave as They Struggle to Gain Votes

Clerk McDowell proceeded to announce the vote when objection was made by Mr. Clayton (Alabama) who made the point that the result should be based on the report of the tellers and not the tally clerks. In consequence there was a short delay. Finally the tellers reported as follows:

Cannon, 204; Clark, 166; Esch, 1; Norris, 2; Cooper, 8; Hepburn, 1. Mr. Cannon was declared elected and Messrs. Clark (Missouri), Campbell (Kansas), and Bartlett (Georgia), were appointed a committee to escort the speaker into the chamber.

Clark Escorts Cannon.

Soon afterward the committee, with Mr. Clark and the Speaker arm in arm, appeared at the center door and proceeded slowly down the aisle to the rostrum, where the Speaker took his accustomed place, the Republicans all the while cheering. In introducing the Speaker, Mr. Clark said:

"I present the second man in the history of the United States that has been elected Speaker of the House of Representatives four consecutive times—the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois."

The Speaker bowing his acknowledgments, addressed the House as follows:

The election to the high office of Speaker, which I now have for the fourth time by virtue of your confidence and judgment, is a compliment, the honor of which I do not underestimate and of which I am not lacking in personal appreciation.

We have before us a most important and difficult session of Congress. The adjustment of the national revenues has been since the foundation of the government, a fundamental question, yielding to none other in importance. Even in the Civil War the question of adequate revenue marched side by side with the valor of our armies and the patriotism of our people, and in time of peace, even disordered finances are a prolific source of national ills, not so acute as those of war, but yet fruitful of calamity for the general interest and suffering for the individual.

Cannon Urges Devotion.

These considerations should animate us to a high devotion to the duty before us. We must subordinate personal feelings to the general good, trusting to the considerate judgment of the people for approval of our work when it shall have been completed.

As senior member of the House, Mr. Bingham of Pennsylvania administered the oath to the Speaker, who in turn swore in the members.

All the Republican caucus nominees for the various offices of the House were re-elected. The slate offered by Minority Leader Clark follows:

Clerk—W. P. Kimball of Kentucky.
Sergeant-at-Arms—J. T. Ellington of North Carolina.
Postmaster—Robert L. Douglas of South Carolina.
Doorkeeper—William W. Adams of Indiana.
Chaplain—George A. Backus of Maryland.

The usual committees were appointed to notify the Senate and the President that the House was ready for business.

Rules Fight Open.

The attention of all the members was concentrated on the adoption of rules. Mr. Dalzell (Pennsylvania) rose to offer the usual resolution providing that the rules of the previous Congress should govern the present Congress.

"And on that motion I move the previous question," he said quickly. It had been understood for weeks that this motion, designed to shut off debate, would be the signal for the long-threatened fight on the rules.

Mr. Clark (Missouri) demanded the ayes and noes before Mr. Dalzell had regained his seat, while Mr. Fitzgerald (New York) under the guise of making a parliamentary inquiry of the chair, asked to have the rules explained.

The Speaker promptly held the question out of order and refused to recognize Mr. Fitzgerald further. The Democrats, led by Mr. Clark, forced a roll call on Mr. Dalzell's motion. During the call of the roll Mr. Townsend (Michigan) sought to make a statement "in explanation of" his vote. The Speaker held that he could not do so. Mr. Townsend then voted "present."

Republicans Shriek.

The previous question was ordered—yeas, 194; nays, 188; present, 1. Mighty shouts went up from the Republican side, many members standing on chairs and applauding, shrieking and otherwise manifesting their delight at the defeat of the "insurgents."

On the adoption of the resolution the Democrats forced another roll call, but before this was begun the Speaker, Champ Clark and Mr. FitzGerald became involved in a controversy over a request by Mr. Clark for a recapitula-

PETROSINO WAS DISGUISED AS AN ENGLISH LORD

New York Detective Wore Blond Wig and Monocle When Slain.

ITALIANS PERTURBED

King Had Assured American Officials Black Hand Was a Myth.

(Copyright, 1909, by the Press Pub. Co.)
(New York World.)

ROME, March 15.—The murder of Joseph Petrosino, deliberately planned and cunningly accomplished at Palermo, perturbs every member of the Cabinet, the more because the American Government sent representatives here as long as a year ago on the same mission as that on which Petrosino came to meet his death.

Robert Watchorn, Commissioner of Immigration at New York, and William B. Howland of New York arrived here early in 1908 in the attempt to make an agreement to prevent members of the Sicilian Mafia and the Neapolitan Cammora from leaving Italy, and, should they escape, to arrest them at the American landing place.

Tittoni, then and now Foreign Minister, refused to co-operate with the American proposals, which, it is recognized now, were prompted by the desire to protect Italian citizens in the United States from blackmail and slaughter.

Tittoni haughtily refused the request that the criminal record of any man or woman be attached to the passport which the Government might issue.

King Spoke With Levity.

But more than that, King Victor Emmanuel himself, in the course of an hour's interview with the American commissioners, bade them return to Washington and assure their Government that the "Black Hand" is a myth and that the Mafia and Cammora are only bugaboos.

This levity, as it may be called truly, may cause serious consequences with the American Government, the more regrettable here because of its generosity after the recent catastrophe in Sicily and Calabria. It must be said that the ministers have more selfish reason for being alarmed by Petrosino's murder. They are only too glad to further the departure to America of any member of the "Black Hand."

The fear, now it is known that the machinations of these secret murderous societies are worldwide, that America will demand an immigration law that will bring them under the ban of these midnight assassins.

However, the Government holds that Petrosino was in the same category as any American citizen abroad, contemplated in the treaty between Italy and the United States, concluded Feb. 26, 1871, establishing that the subject of each country shall enjoy the same protection and security for their persons and property as natives.

Reward for Assassins.

The American Ambassador has made further representations to the Foreign Office setting forth the imperative necessity for the protection of both Italians and Americans of bringing the assassins of Petrosino to justice. The Foreign Office officials assured him that everything possible was being done by the Italian Government and promised that he should be kept informed of all developments.

The general inspector of police has already proceeded to Palermo to make a full investigation, and the Government, in addition to leaving nothing untried to discover the criminals, has offered large rewards for their capture.

Disguised as Englishman.

According to news dispatches received from Palermo, Petrosino met his death while disguised as an English nobleman. His dark hair was covered by a blond wig, the dispatches say, and he wore Dundreary sidewhiskers and a monocle. He did not look at all like an Italian, and it was not until he spoke to the gendarmes and tried to name his assassins that they realized he was not a British nobleman.

In his trunk, it is also reported from Palermo, were 10 complete outfits for disguising himself in various characters, some showing signs of recent use. It was apparent that he had been working very cautiously and trying to conceal himself from the desperadoes he was investigating.

The Mafia, through its secret channels, today issued this order: "Anyone speaking too freely of Petrosino's death will met the same fate." The editors of all the Palermo newspapers received direct instructions from Mafia executives that they must not criticise the American detective's death, and above all must refrain from publishing any names of suspects or hints at suspects' indentities.

The Palermo police have made innumerable arrests. The most important prisoners appear to be two young Sicilians whom Petrosino shadowed from New York. When the detective reported to the American Consulate in Palermo upon his arrival there he said:

"I heard a Sicilian who had just come from New York say to a group of friends today: 'There's Joe Petrosino, the New York detective who boasted that he broke up the Mafia over there.' In the group were the two men I shadowed."

He gave the Consulate their names, it is said, and thus the police were able to arrest them. The police have been stirred up by orders from Rome, following important cablegrams sent to the Minister of Police by the Italian Embassy at Washington.

FOUR SUSPECTS ARRESTED BY THE NEW YORK POLICE

NEW YORK, March 15.—In a raid attended by sensational circumstances in the local investigation of the assassination of Lieut. Joseph Petrosino, four prisoners were captured by Brooklyn detectives. They were hurried to the Adams Street Police Station, where this charge was recorded against them:

"Accused of having knowledge of the recent assassination of a detective of world-wide repute."

One of the prisoners, who made a desperate struggle to escape, is believed by the police to be a Black Hand leader notorious in this country and until recently commander of a gang having its headquarters in Chicago.

LOCAL ITALIAN POLICEMEN CONFER WITH CHIEF SMITH

Sergeant Anton Andreveno and Patrolman Anton Tomasso, the two Italian members of the Police Department, conferred with Chief of Detectives Smith Monday morning behind closed doors. It was rumered about Police Headquarters that the Nation-wide movement to exterminate the "Black Hand" society, following the assassination in Sicily of Petrosino, the New York "Black Hand" detective, was to be participated in by the local force.

After the conference neither Chief Smith nor the two uniformed officers would discuss the purpose of the meeting. Acting Chief Gillaspy stated the officers had been summoned to Police Headquarters for an interview with the detective chief.

Prominent Italians in St. Louis have received threatening letters demanding money from local agents of the society. A few months ago it was a common occurrence for some wealthy Italian merchant to receive one of these missives signed with skulls and crossbones. Tomasso was assigned to the work of running down the secret blackmailers. He made one arrest, but the victim refused, either through fear or for some other reason, to prosecute.

For weeks Tomasso and Lieut. McCormack of the Carr Street District, were on the trail of an Italian supposed to be the leader of the local band, but he left the city and the work was later abandoned.

SIX BLACK HAND SUSPECTS LEFT CHICAGO FOR PALERMO

CHICAGO, March 15.—Acting Chief of Police Schuettler stated today, in connection with the assassination in Palermo of Lieut. Petrosino, that six Black Hand suspects, one of them said to be the Western leader of the society, left for Sicily last month.

"Joseffi Scruiba is one of the men whom we kept under almost constant surveillance," said Capt. Schuettler. "He lived at Marion, Ill., and I have an unserved warrant, charging extortion for him now. He left Marion for his native village near Palermo a month ago. About the same time five other Italians, whom we had reason to regard with suspicion, also left the country. All, I believe, lived in or near Palermo. I have communicated the facts to the New York police."

KLEIN IS GUILTY OF ASSAULT WITH DEADLY WEAPON

TACOMA, Wash., March 15.—Joshua Klein, mystic and occultist, was found guilty of an assault with a deadly weapon against Miss Dora Culberson, and today awaits sentence, possibly to two years' imprisonment, in the Superior Court. Klein will be deported immediately upon his release from prison, when his sentence has expired. Alexander S. Fulton, United States Immigration Inspector, declared he would have taken steps to have Klein sent from the country on grounds of insanity if he had not been convicted of crime.

Klein was little affected when the verdict was read after the jury had deliberated 10 hours. Apparently he realized he had ruined his chances of acquittal by his strange conduct in court Saturday when, with blazing eyes and livid features, he drew himself to the full height of his 7 feet and entered upon a harangue which the Judge, court attaches and even his own attorney were unable to interrupt.

The mother of Miss Dora Sauvageot, the girl who is said to be living under the Austrian Svengali's influence in his chateau in Switzerland with Miss Rosa Karaseck, another victim of the mystic's hypnotism, was delighted with the jury's finding.

"When that man is safe in prison I will go to Switzerland and overcome his influence over my daughter," the woman declared. "I think his power over her will wane when he is behind stone walls and iron bars, but if it does not I will wait until he is deported and then bring every effort at my command to bear upon him and he will be compelled to release Dora from the bonds of his magnetism."

Relatives of the girls held in the Swiss chalet are among the wealthiest people in Tacoma.

Klein was charged with attacking Miss Culberson, who is a cousin of Dora Sauvageot, with a poniard when the young woman warned one of Klein's intended victims. Miss Culberson recited the story of her cousin's infatuation to the woman who was learning to love the occultist, and Klein, becoming enraged, attacked her.

Klein met Miss Sauvageot and Miss Kareseck in Vienna, where the young women went to study music a year ago. He propounded to them the mysteries of a cult original with him and after he had spent much of his time with them, the girls went with him to his villa in Switzerland.

WORLD PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN LIBEL ACTION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Press Publishing Co., publishers of the New York World, through its counsel, Delancey Nicoll, pleaded not guilty before Judge Holt in the Federal Court today to the charge of criminal libel in West Point and the New York Postoffice in the Panama Canal case.

Counsel for Caleb VanHamm, an editor of The World, also entered a plea of not guilty to a similar charge in behalf of Mr. Van Hamm. Counsel was granted one week to prepare a special pleading as to the jurisdiction of the court.

Mr. Van Hamm was paroled in his attorney's custody.

No question of jurisdiction was raised by counsel for the Press Publishing Co., but Mr. Untermyer, for Mr. Van Hamm, said he wished leave to withdraw the plea of not guilty for his client and argue apart from the regular plea as to jurisdiction. He cited as precedent for such action the decision of Judge Humphrey in the beef company cases, when he allowed the special plea of immunity to be argued before the regular plea of not guilty.

The Court held that the special plea must be argued within a week. Mr. Untermyer said that the question he wished to bring up in the interest of Mr. Van Hamm was as to just where the publication of the alleged libel took place.

"The indictments against the two defendants were found recently by the Federal Grand Jury here after lengthy investigation of charges of libel on their part in connection with articles on the Panama Canal purchase. It was alleged that, among others, President Taft, Charles P. Taft, the President's brother, ex-President Roosevelt and Douglas Robinson had been libeled in articles published last October and circulated on Government reservation, at West Point and in the Federal Building here.

tion of the last vote. The Speaker refused to enter into the proposition and sharply directed the clerk to proceed with the call.

The vote resulted: Ayes 189, Nays 193.

Pandemonium broke out among the Democrats and "insurgents." Their demonstration exceeded by far that of the regular Republicans when the previous question was ordered. It was some time before order was restored.

For the first time Mrs. Taft occupied a seat in the executive gallery. She was accompanied by Capt. Archibald Butt, one of the military aides to the President, and two other ladies.

Following to the invocation and the reading of the proclamation of President Taft the roll was called by states to ascertain the presence of a quorum.

The Senate was called to order by Vice-President Sherman. Sixty-six senators answered to their names. Announcements were made of the illness of Senators Bacon and Clay of Georgia, McLaurin of Mississippi, Culberson of Texas and Tillman of South Carolina.

The galleries were filled with visitors. The Republican side has a full representation present, while 15 Democrats were in their seats.

La Follette Escorts Stephenson.

Senator La Follette presented the credentials of his colleague, Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin, and accompanied him to the desk of the Vice-President, where Mr. Stephenson took the usual oath of office.

Senators Aldrich and Money were appointed a committee to wait upon the President to inform him that the Senate was ready to receive any message he might wish to communicate.

On motion of Mr. Hale, the Senate took a recess until 2 o'clock.

Senator Hale, chairman of the Republican caucus of the Senate, announced the following as the membership of the Republican committee to select the standing committees of the Senate,

Aldrich, chairman; Kean, McCumber, Crane, Flint, Sutherland, Curtis, Borah and Dixon.

The committee immediately proceeded to reorganize the committees:

CONFESSES AND BARES BREAST TO HUSBAND'S SHOT

Despoiler of Texas Home Asks Slayer to Level Gun at His Heart.

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 15.—Fred Morris, 24 years old, who forced a written confession from Otto H. Meyer, who had despoiled his home, and then shot him to death, is in jail today relying solely on the statement Meyer signed before his death for an acquittal on the charge of murder. Morris has made a full detailment of his deed to the police, describing how Meyer bared his breast and, with arms spread out, begged the man who was about to kill him to shoot straight and strike the heart.

Morris waived preliminary examination this morning before Judge Bartton and says he will be able to furnish $10,000 bond as required.

Meyer was two years Morris' senior. While employed as a musician and singer in a theater at Denton, the home of the Morris family, he became acquainted with Mrs. Morris, the mother of a 2-year-old boy. The paper bearing Meyer's alleged confession of improper conduct with Mrs. Morris is headed with the words: "Fred knows all about our relations," and is signed by the young wife herself.

Morris' confession of the killing to the police is that he demanded a written statement from Meyer at the point of a revolver in the Worth Hotel room.

Says He Shot to Kill.

"When he signed his name I fired and I meant to shoot him through the heart," he is quoted as saying when arrested at the scene of the tragedy.

The text of Meyer's purported confession is that during the absence of Morris on business trips for a cotton firm he won the confidence of Mrs. Morris.

"I loved the baby and was kind to its mother," are the words in the statement. "This confession is given of my own free will, and for all, I ask God's forgiveness." These are the last written or uttered words by Meyer before his death, according to Morris. Morris says he met Meyer first Friday evening in Fort Worth, although it was partly by an appointment arranged in a letter of Mrs. Morris to Meyer asking Meyer to meet her husband March 14 and consider a theatrical project at Weatherford.

The idea of their engaging a single room was not discussed until the two men registered at the hotel Saturday evening, 20 minutes before the killing. Morris is a tall, slender, fair-complexioned young man of refined appearance. For three years he has been a member of the Denton (Tex.) Athletic Team, amateur baseball champions.

POSTMISTRESS FINDS EVERY DRUG STORE IS A SALOON

Search for Law-Abiding Pharmacy in Muskogee, Okla., for Sub-Station a Failure.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., March 15.—In response to instructions from the Postoffice authorities at Washington, Miss Alice M. Robertson, Muskogee's Postmistress, has been scouring the city for two days in search of a drug store in which to establish a substation and has finally given up the effort in disgust.

She reports her inability to find a drug store without a saloon adjunct run in defiance of Oklahoma's prohibition statute. Because the Government forbids the establishment of a postoffice in rooms where intoxicating liquors are sold. Miss Robertson has appealed for further instructions.

HIGH HONORS FOR YOUNG GOULD

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. met for organization today and re-elected the old officers. Two new members, Kingdon Gould and H. B. At the meeting of the directors of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway, the officers were re-elected and Kingdon Gould, Frank J. Gould and Edwin Gould were elected to the Executive Committee, succeeding R. M. Gallaway, Howard Gould and J. T. Terry.

GIFTS FOR BRINKLEY SUFFERERS RECEIVED AT MASS MEETING

Urgent Appeals Are Made and Letters Are to Be Sent to Business Men.

A meeting to arouse public interest in the sufferings of the Brinkley, Ark., tornado victims and to start a St. Louis relief fund for them was held on the floor of the Merchants' Exchange at 1 p. m. Monday. Some gifts were made following the meeting, but it was said that no statement would be given out until replies had been received to the letters that are to be sent out to all business men, asking contributions.

E. E. Scharff, president of the Merchants' Exchange, presided and stated the object of the meeting. There were 300 persons present. Mr. Scharff said that the calamity at Brinkley had left hundreds homeless and without either shelter or food, wiping away the property accumulations of many years.

"Let the broad liberal humanitarianism of St. Louis be shown now," he said, "and make liberal responses to the cry for help that comes to us from Brinkley."

Murray Carleton, chairman of the committee which will have charge of the fund to be raised, also spoke, asking liberal donations.

Woman Throws Children From Second-Story Window, Then Jumps to Street.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 15.—Nine persons were injured, two fatally, here last night, when a gas explosion occurred in the basement of Salvador Balsamo's fruit store, on South Fifth street. Balsamo had gone to the basement, candle in hand, in search of a gas leak. Balsamo and Thomas Allen, aged 37, an occupant of the building, were fatally burned.

Mrs. Clara Piero threw her children from a second-story window to the street and then jumped herself. All were painfully injured.

LOS ANGELES NAMES MAYOR FOR 11 DAYS

W. D. Stephens Unanimous Choice of Council for Short Term.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 15.—W. D. Stephens was today selected unanimously by the City Council for Mayor to serve until March 26, the date set for the recall election.

Mr. Stephens was in the Council chamber and was called upon for a speech. He accepted the office and asked that he be sworn in at once. The City Clerk was sent for and the oath administered.

Three cheers were given for the new Mayor by the crowd, jubilant over the apparently happy outcome of the strained situation.

He succeeded Mayor Harper, who resigned on Thursday night of last week, facing an election on his recall, the first election of the kind ever held in any American city for the recall of a Mayor. Since his resignation was accepted on the following morning by the Council, the city had been without a Mayor.

The mayoralty question centers around E. T. Earl, editor of the Express, who, by virtue of his knowledge of the official conduct of former Mayor Harper, has become the political czar of the city.

Earl had formed a Municipal League, through which he sought to control the election of Harper's successor. He threatened to set the league on councilmen who refused to vote as he wanted them to on the mayoralty. Earl's candidate for Mayor was George Alexander.

Late last night the situation was further confused by the positive statement of one councilman that the members who were favorable to a compromise had agreed on William D. Stephens providing he would accept the election for whatever period the City Attorney held was the unexpired term. Stephens declined to become the recall candidate against Harper.

New Men Talked Of.

The only names used in the talk of new men last night were Dr. Walter Lindell, Lee C. Gates and W. M. Bowen, former President of the Council. It was announced that Gates would not accept the election and that Stephens did not give any answer whether he would or not. The decision of City Attorney Hewitt was unknown to the councilmen last night. Mr. Hewitt's opinion is that the recall election must be preceded by that of a Mayor chosen by the Council, who will hold office only until after that election and not "until the end of the unexpired term." He says:

"The unexpired term in this case expires with the recall election and not at the end of the legal term."

MOTHER HAS HER SON ARRESTED FOR CALLING ON GIRL

Mrs. Roethmeyer Wanted Chris to Go to Church, but He Would Not.

Because he went to call on a girl when his mother wanted him to go to church, Chris. Roethmeyer, 17 years old, was followed to the home of the young woman by his mother and a policeman, and was arrested there.

Miss Edna Goebel, at whose home, 2108 Blair avenue, Roethmeyer was arrested, was in the Dayton Street Police Court Monday to testify for him. She was not called on, for Judge Pollard dismissed the case as soon as he had heard the mother's story.

"It's very strange you should have your son arrested for going to call on a nice young lady like that," remarked the Judge to Mrs. Roethmeyer.

Patrolman J. Hughes, who made the arrest, explained that Mrs. Roethmeyer had told him her son had created a disturbance. She was asked by Judge Pollard whether he had used any violence or bad language, and said he had not.

Must Stay Home or Go To Church.

"I just told him he must either stay at home or go to church," she testified, "and when he would not do either, I had him arrested."

Edna Goebel said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, after the case was dismissed, that she had been acquainted with young Roethmeyer since last Christmas. "We met at a party," she said, "and when he asked if he might call, I told him to ask my father and mother. They consented, and he has been coming to see me ever since. I think the reason his mother did not like to have him calling on me is that my people are Christian Scientists."

Edna is a blonde with blue eyes and clear complexion. Young Roethmeyer's home is at 2923 North Thirteenth street.

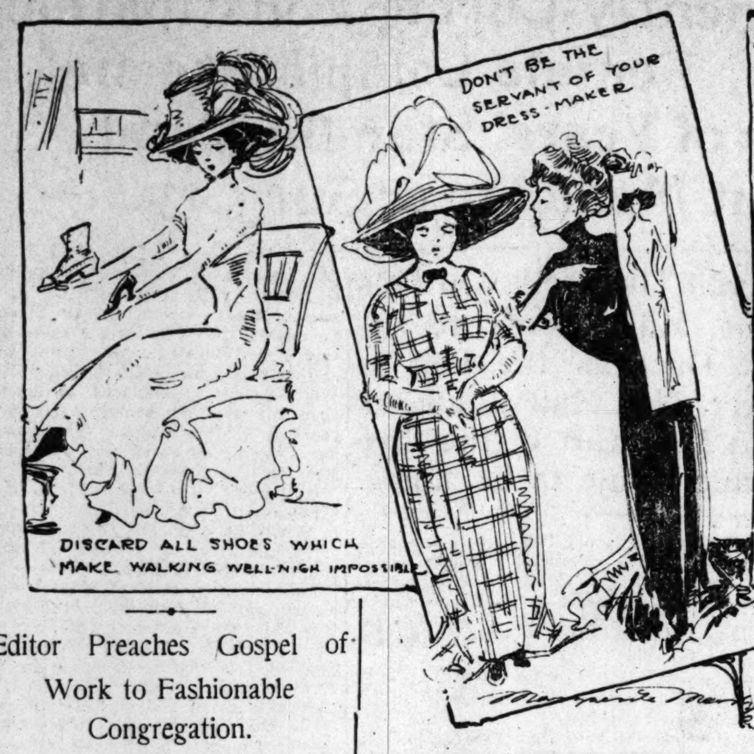
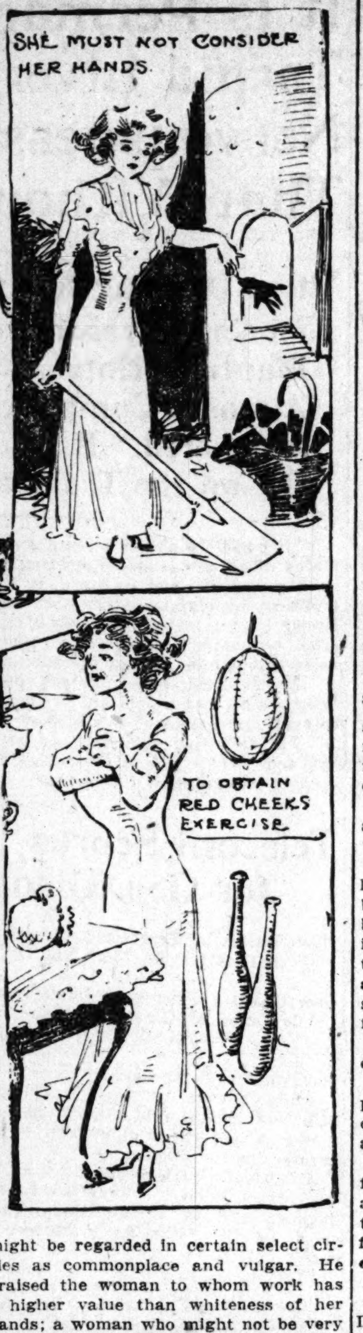
DR. ABBOTT'S IDEAL WOMAN HAS RED HANDS AS WELL AS CHEEKS



DISCARD ALL SHOES WHICH MAKE WALKING WELL-NIGH IMPOSSIBLE
DON'T BE THE SERVANT OF YOUR DRESS-MAKER



SHE MUST NOT CONSIDER HER HANDS.
TO OBTAIN RED CHEEKS EXERCISE

Editor Preaches Gospel of Work to Fashionable Congregation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 15.—When the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, and one of the leading Congregational preachers of the country, gave his conception of "The Ideal Woman" in a sermon at the Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, last night, he confined himself to the homelier ideas and figures of speech.

Not once did he use the word "culture" in his summary of "seven essentials." No mention is to be found of "race suicide." And there is no reference to feminine pulchritude, save inferentially in the remark that the ideal woman has the rosy cheek which comes from exercise and health, and not the cheek tinted with powder and cosmetics.

It was a fashionable audience that faced the eminent sociologist. Women were there whose feet were pinched by tight shoes. The preacher could see cheeks whose warm tints were palpably artificial. He addressed many women who not only are dictated to in matters of style by "men in Paris," but who pride themselves on the faithfulness with which they follow that dictation.

Seven Rules for the Ideal Woman

DISCARD all shoes the size of which makes walking well-nigh impossible.

2. She must not consider her hands when it comes to a question of work.
3. To obtain red cheeks the ideal woman must take exercise and pass by paint and powder.
4. She must not be the servant of the dressmaker and milliner. They are her servants.
5. She must not change her styles at the dictation of men in Paris.
6. Her home must be her palace, because in it she has developed a love of beauty and shown she knows how to create it.
7. She must be industrious, sympathetic, energetic, enthusiastic, motherly and a true friend.

But the preacher did not mince words, regardless of the fact that the word-picture he painted of "the ideal woman" might be regarded in certain select circles as commonplace and vulgar. He praised the woman to whom work has a higher value than whiteness of her hands; a woman who might not be very welcome in the drawing rooms of fashion.

"Woman's idea of modern industry," said Dr. Abbott, "is to play bridge whist morning, noon and night. Her idea of modern life is to be supported by some one else."

Then the doctor held up his ideal woman in contrast to her sister with these "modern ideas."

"The ideal woman," said he, "does not look upon work as unwomanly. And she believes that what concerns her husband concerns her, too. Suppose the ideal woman's family finds fault with the food she serves. She goes to work at once to rectify the trouble, if necessary, by providing altogether different food."

Then the doctor took a shot at the divorce problem, thus:

"Woman was meant to be man's companion," he said, "and if that idea were carried out properly there would be no affinities."

Dr. Abbott is distinguished in three fields, as an editor, as a clergyman and as a sociologist. It was he who obtained for the Outlook the services of former President Roosevelt as a member of the editorial staff.

SEALED VERDICT BRINGS FREEDOM FOR C. E. BROWN

Lawyer Accused of Counterfeiting Relieved by Acquittal He Knew Was Coming.

DANVILLE, Ill., March 15.—As had been rumored since the Federal jury returned a sealed verdict last Friday evening in the case against Attorney Charles E. Brown for counterfeiting, the verdict, when opened in the United States Court this morning, proved to be for acquittal.

Although it is known that Brown had previously shaken hands with a number of the jurors and thanked them, he breathed a deep sigh of relief when Judge Wright read the verdict. The jury had been discharged and was not in the courtroom at the time.

Brown's wife was not with him, but immediately after the verdict he hastened to a telephone and informed her that everything was as they had hoped. Brown, who has maintained since his arrest for counterfeiting that he had planned only to go in the medal manufacturing business, declares he will continue in that business.

'BROKEN' BROKER, HUNGRY, BEGS TO GET CLEAN SHIRT

Arrested Man Shows Commission to Sell Half Million Acres of Land.

Empowered as a real estate broker to negotiate the sale of land aggregating a half million acres, William A. Morgan, 40 years old, was arrested Sunday night charged with begging on the street.

After he had asked a man for 10 cents the man held him until a policeman put in an appearance and then turned him over to the officer.

"I wasn't cadging for something to drink," said Morgan apologetically. "I'm not a drinking man and I don't have to beg for food. I can get plenty of that from the cooks I know. I wanted to get my laundry."

He threw back his shabby coat and displayed an undershirt.

"I didn't want to go around looking like a tramp," he continued, "and my only shirt and collar are in the laundry."

Despite his assertion that he can get all the food he wants, Morgan devoured the crust of bread and hunk of bologna furnished him by the police Monday morning with apparent relish.

"I might call myself a St. Louisan," he said. "Years ago I worked for the Evans & Howard Brick Co. here. Then I went to Douglas, Ariz., and struck it pretty rich. I dealt in land and made money. I am authorized to sell a half million acres of ground in Arizona and Arkansas. Last year's panic broke me. With the little money I had been able to save throughout the financial stringency I went to Chicago seeking work. It was useless for me to remain in Douglas, as no one had any money with which to purchase land. I could find nothing to do in Chicago, so in February I came here. I've been in pretty hard luck.

"My wardrobe was finally reduced to one shirt and collar in addition to these rags I am wearing. I tried to keep up appearances, hoping it would aid me in my search for work. Last Thursday I sent my shirt and collar to the laundry and wore my coat collar turned up to conceal my true condition."

Before Morgan had told his story Lieutenant Hess in examining the prisoner's effects scanned the documents pertaining to real estate.

"Are you related to the broker whose name appears on these papers?" asked Hess.

"Unfortunately I am that person myself," responded Morgan.

SOCIALIST ENDS LIFE EMBITTERED BY DEBS' DEFEAT

Toes Tapping Against Window Pane Reveal Him Hanging in Alley.

Disappointed at the recent defeat of Debs, the Socialist candidate for president and despondent because there was no prospect of a redistribution of the wealth of this country in the near future, Alfonse Beller, a Socialist, about 50 years old, hanged himself from the railing of a porch at the rear of his home at 907 South Eighth street.

From the street the body was seen hanging in the alley by persons passing on their way to early mass. At the same time the wind, swaying the body as it hung, caused its toes to tap gently on the window pane of the room where William Jackman slept. The sound awakened him and he looked out and saw the body. He screamed, and the landlady, Mrs. Mary Sprague, ran in. When she saw the body hanging by its neck she fainted.

Roomers at the house say that Beller was an anarchist and that he told that he came from Germany to this country just before the last presidential campaign, believing that Socialism would sweep this country, that there would be a redistribution of all wealth and that he would get his share.

He was in Denver election day, and when Debs was defeated it broke his spirit. He came to St. Louis three weeks ago. All his talk was about the injustice of the social system.

PORTRAIT FOR SUPREME COURT

Oil Painting of Judge Thomas A. Sherwood Is Presented.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 15.—In the presence of some two hundred persons, Federal Judge John F. Philips, on behalf of the donors, today presented to the Supreme Court an oil portrait of Judge Thomas A. Sherwood, who served on the bench for thirty years, dating from 1872.

The address in acceptance was made by Judge Gantt. The portrait was painted by Benjamin Gray, son of James Gray, clerk of the United States Circuit Court in St. Louis.

BARBERS CALL IT MERCENARY TO STAY OPEN ON SUNDAYS

Journeymen and Proprietors at Joint Meeting Oppose Amending Existing Law.

Efforts to amend an existing law so that barber shops may be kept open on Sunday were denounced as mercenary and demoralizing at a mass meeting of 190 journeymen and boss barbers at the old Liederkranz Hall, Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, Sunday afternoon. William Hahn presided and Eugene Boreburg was secretary.

The principal address was made by J. C. Shanessy of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union, who said that most proprietors and all the working barbers are opposed to Sunday opening.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The arrest of William Tracy, a Brooklyn business man and his "mugging" at Police Headquarters, are back of a suit for $100,000, which has just been begun against Commissioner Bingham and six members of the Police Department. Tracy was acquitted on trial.

A DANGEROUS COUGH

Wife of Newark, Ohio, Man Had Symptoms of Consumption, Was Badly Run Down and Reduced in Flesh.

RESTORED TO HEALTH BY VINOL

"About two years ago my wife was in very poor health. She had no appetite, was much reduced in flesh, and for three months had a very bad cough, with all the symptoms of consumption. Vinol was recommended, and she began taking it; before the first bottle was used her appetite was better, and she was improving in health; by the time she had taken three bottles the cough was gone. She is still taking Vinol and cannot say too much in its praise." N. L. Stebleton, Newark, Ohio.

The reason that Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it is the only preparation that contains tonic iron together with all of the healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but no oil.

TOES DO SEWING FOR PARALYZED HANDS OF WOMAN

City Hospital Patient Even Threads Needle and Does Embroidering.

BUILT FIRE WITH FEET

Superintendent Says Case Is Most Remarkable He Ever Knew.

Miss Kate Krage, a patient in the City Hospital, writes, sews, embroiders and lights matches with her toes as deftly as many women could with their hands.

Monday she was busy embroidering her name, "Kate," on a circular piece of canvas that was fastened in an embroidery loop eight inches in diameter. She sat upon the edge of her cot. In front of her was an ordinary dining room chair. The embroidery hoop stood on the chair bottom and leaned against the rungs of the chair back.

One of her bare feet was behind the hoop, the other in front of it. Holding the needle between the great toe and the one next to it, she would push it through the cloth and as soon as the needle point appeared on the other side she would grip it between the toes of the other foot and pull it through. This she repeated again and again.

Needle Threaded With Toes.

The most wonderful thing she does is to thread a needle with her toes. This is all the more difficult because she has to hold the needle and thread so far away from her eyes that it is hard for her to see the eye of the needle. But she seldom makes more than three or four attempts before she gets the thread through the eye.

In writing, she holds the pencil between her great toe and the one next to it. She writes a plain round hand. Nearly all the doctors and nurses at the hospital have as souvenirs her autograph written with her toes.

While she lived at home, Miss Krage ...d to build the fire in the stove and [illegible] with her toes.

[illegible] this deftness with her feet and ...e acquired in the last two years. ...ands have been paralyzed and use-...ince she was 18 months old, and ... 27 years old now. It was not un-...o years ago that her brother, Arthur Krage, of Illinois and Cherokee avenues suggested to her that she might learn to use her toes as substitutes for fingers. She began at once to practice.

Dr. Kirchner Is Astonished.

Dr. W. B. G. Kirchner, Superintendent of the City Hospital, declares that hers is the most remarkable case he ever knew.

Miss Krage went to the City Hospital early in February suffering with the grip. Her father is dead. Her stepmother, Mrs. Krage, lives at 311 Lafayette avenue, but she was living with a friend at 202 Soulard street when she was taken sick. She is almost fully recovered now. When she is entirely well the authorities at the hospital will try and place her in some institution where she will be well cared for.

Tells Why Laxatives Are Usually Harmful.

Explains Results of Constipation Poison on System.

No one can afford to be pimply, blotched and ulcer-skinned, for, say what we will, each and every one of us must admit that a pimply face is repulsive—and it is, because it is the outward evidence of the inward filth and poison coursing through the blood. Most every one endeavors to keep from being constipated, but many adopt the use of laxatives or cathartics which are all right—in their place. But the harm comes from the ever increasing dose and the constant drain on the liver and intestines. Neglected constipation brings a train of ills that would fill an ordinary column, but summed up, it is after all poisons and acids in the blood, nothing more or less, which give rise to many symptoms called "diseases."

Those who have pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, ulcers and the like should really be considered fortunate, as nature is plainly warning them to purify the blood; while others are only warned by fatal diseases such as blood poison, appendicitis and typhoid fever.

Whenever constipation exists or pimples and boils are manifested, or, in fact any ill health due to bad blood—and most of it is—is present there is the wonderful new drug-chemical sulpherb, to be pointed at as the best and quickest modern treatment in existence.

If the reader is unfamiliar with its virtues it may be well to state that it is a compound of herbs such as aloes, sarsaparilla, mandrake, and sulphur, sulphide and cream of tartar, put together by powerful machine pressure and so easily spoiled by exposure to air—it decomposes in a few minutes—that it has been found necessary to make it in tablet form and sugar-coat the tablets and pack them in round sealed tubes, obtainable at Wolff-Wilson's well-stocked drug store. By addressing The Prescription Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, anyone can obtain sulpherb in 3-grain tablets for actual test.

JEFFERSON CITY MINISTER SAYS HIS CHURCH WILL NOT ACCEPT ANY TAINTED MONEY

Contributions From Grafters, Declares Dr. Palmer, Will Be Rejected.

Special From Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 15.—No tainted money is wanted by the First Baptist Church of Jefferson City. The Rev. Ray Palmer, the pastor, says his congregation needs money badly for the erection of a new church, but never, no, never, will they accept a dollar from John D. Rockefeller.

"The oil king is a grafter," declared Dr. Palmer. "His money is counterfeit so far as my congregation is concerned."

Dr. Palmer then spoke of other grafters and declared that saloon keepers and legislators who defend the saloon interests are in the same class. He criticised most severely those lawmakers who are opposing the joint and current resolutions for the submission of the prohibition amendment.

Dr. Palmer is in charge of the prohibition workers here. Both he and his wife are daily visitors in the House and Senate chambers. If any of the First Baptist worshippers do not like the stand Dr. Palmer has taken they can leave the church or call for his resignation. This at least is what he told the congregation last night.

More Important Than "Spring Tonics"

The spring of the year is a bad time for infectious diseases and it is impossible to prevent sickness by taking "spring tonics."

Far better protection from disease is attained by thorough disinfection about the house.

Get a bottle of a powerful non-poisonous germicide like CN Disinfectant and add it to the water when cleaning and scrubbing. Also sprinkle it regularly about the house into toilets and sinks and about the plumbing, and disease germs will not get a chance to attack your family.

WIFE OF ICE KING WHO GAVE UP FORTUNE TO AID CONVICTED MAN

MRS. CHARLES W. MORSE.

HIS WIFE SELLS JEWELS TO HELP BANKER MORSE

Furs and House Furnishings Also Sacrificed to Raise Needed Funds.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Mrs. Charles W. Morse, wife of the convicted banker, declared today that she has sacrificed her jewels and furs and stripped her Fifth avenue home of its sumptuous furnishings in order to aid her husband in paying his pressing debts.

"My husband is today a poor man," she said in a quiet tone as though stating a universally recognized fact. "There were bills to be met—bills from lawyers, stenographers and printers—for services in connection with my husband's trial, and he was powerless to meet them. Then I did what any other woman would do who loves her husband. I cheerfully sold anything in my possession that anyone would buy."

"Did your sacrifice include your jewelry?" was asked.

"Oh, yes," was the reply. "I sold my jewels and my sables and a lot of the beautiful things that brightened my home. You see, a certain sum of money had to be raised on a certain day and I was so glad to help.

"I am living in this big house with a single servant. My only other extravagances are an electric brougham and a chauffeur. These I keep solely in order to carry Mr. Morse his meals. But for this service I should dispense with them at once and without a regret. My happiness now lies in anything I can do to serve Mr. Morse.

"I have told you the truth," she said, "and I have authorized the circulation of the facts. But do not make the mistake of picturing me in sentimental pose."

DEATH OF CITY HALL EMPLOYE

Michael McCauliff Dies After Brief Illness From Erysipelas.

The funeral of Michael McCauliff, for the last six years janitor of the House of Delegates, who died Sunday of erysipelas at his home, 830 Brooklyn street, will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday from St. Michael's Church, Eleventh and Brooklyn streets, and burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. He was 60 years old and left a widow and three children, Timothy, who was formerly a member of the House of Delegates from the Third Ward, and James and Mary McCauliff.

Mr. McCauliff had lived in St. Louis 40 years. He was known to and well liked by everyone in the City Hall. It was his acknowledged privilege to watch every move of the House Delegates and to criticise the votes of the members. He was especially harsh in his criticisms of Delegates Hussey, Gallagher and Brennan and they took his criticism good naturedly. He was at work Saturday, but complained of being ill.

DR. LAWRENCE WILL BE BURIED WITHOUT FUNERAL

Millionaire Acquired Fortune Publishing Medical Brief in St. Louis.

MOVED TO NEW YORK

Went East After His Ideas Had Estranged Him From Profession.

There will be no funeral services in St. Louis over the body of Dr. Joseph J. Lawrence, millionaire physician-editor, formerly prominent in St. Louis but since 1900 a resident of New York, where he died at his Fifth avenue home Sunday. The body will arrive in St. Louis at 2 p. m. Tuesday and will be taken directly from the Union Station to Bellefontaine Cemetery.

For a quarter of a century Dr. Lawrence occupied a unique position in St. Louis as editor of the Medical Brief, publication of which was discontinued several years ago.

The publisher, who was a graduate of a Cincinnati medical college, was a man of marked independence of thought. His ideas of the medical profession were not in harmony with the ideas entertained by a majority of the St. Louis practitioners and on account of the editorials in the Medical Brief Dr. Lawrence "fell out" with many leading physicians in this city.

Magazine Was Successful.

He was as independent in other matters as he was in his conception of the practice of medicine. He had his own ideas about religion and most other matters of serious import.

He came to St. Louis and established his magazine in 1876. He lived with his family at 3811 West Pine boulevard. During the 25 years he resided here, Dr. Lawrence accumulated a fortune. It was supposed by many who knew him that he was interested in the manufacture of several well-known proprietary medicines.

However, intimate associates say that the Medical Brief, which attained a wide circulation, was profitable, and that its earnings were largely augmented by successful deals in real estate. By these two means alone, say those who knew the late editor best, was his fortune built up.

Supported Nonsectarian Church.

Dr. Lawrence was a veteran of the Civil War, having served in the Confederate Army. He had been a Democrat all his life, but in 1896 again displayed the independence of his mind by voting for McKinley.

In 1900 his wife persuaded him to move to New York and he built for his family there a handsome residence at 1080 Fifth avenue, althought maintaining his legal residence in St. Louis, where his will is to be filed for probate.

Soon after his departure from St. Louis the Nonsectarian Church at Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenues, in which he had been one of the most active workers, closed.

His two children, Frank Lawrence and Mrs. Minnie Siegrist, died several years ago. Mrs. Siegrist left one child, Vera, who several years ago, at the age of 15, eloped with Russell Hopkins, a wealthy young man from Atlanta, Ga. They have one child, a daughter 2 months old. Their home is at Irvington-on-the-Hudson. Mrs. Lawrence is still living, and makes her home in New York.

TUMOR OF FOUR YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They said that only an operation could help me. I am very glad that I followed a friend's advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it has made me a strong and well woman, and I shall recommend it as long as I live."—MRS. MAY FRY, Lindley, Ind.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation or ulceration, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

TELECONI, THE GREAT ABDOMINAL TREATMENT, ACCOMPLISHING WONDERFUL RESULTS IN ST. LOUIS

It Is Permanently Curing Constipation, Torpid Liver, Female Complaints and Nervousness of Years' Standing, and That Without Medicine or Surgery.

Those Desiring to Avail Themselves of This Modern Treatment Must Come to the Planters Hotel at Once as the List Is Almost Complete. No Mail Inquiries Answered. If You Live Out of the City Get on the Train and Come to St. Louis.

"If I had the ability to cure constipation and torpid liver I could cure nine-tenths of all the ailments existing today," said a prominent physician in discussing medicine and its uses. It is understood that Teleconi does cure these prevalent complaints, in fact the evidence is indisputable and it is a reasonable theory that a torpid condition of the liver brings on nervousness, sick headache, rheumatism, neuralgia, female complaints, insomnia, paralysis and many other complaints. Hence the success of Teleconi.

Teleconi has spread like a Kansas prairie fire in the one week it has been in St. Louis, and people are coming from all over the city and several States to avail themselves of this modern drugless treatment.

The following authentic stories prove conclusively that Teleconi fills the long-felt want which is emphasized by the statement of the physician in the opening paragraph of this article.

Teleconi Scores for Geo. Olson

New System of Treatment Attracting More Attention Than Politics.

Geo. Olson, a Prominent Lumberman, Is Cured of Constipation and Nervous Debility.

(From the Minneapolis Tribune.)

James Austin Larson and Teleconi still continue the center attractions in this city, and the local interest is far greater than politics.

This treatment is being taken up by all classes, from the humblest to the highest, and is accomplishing much good, as the following characteristic story will show:

"Teleconi is indeed the life, just as James Austin Larson says."

The above is from the lips of George Olson. Mr. Olson had just taken his ninth treatment at the hands of James Austin Larson, and was sitting in the reception room at the hotel when the writer entered. The subject of Teleconi naturally came up, and Mr. Olson voluntarily gave utterance to the sentiments quoted. Mr. Olson is a lumberman, 49 years of age.

"For seven years," said Mr. Olson, "I had been a sufferer from constipation. My bowels were always out of order, and I experienced peculiar pains, as though tied up in knots. During all that period I had been in the care of doctors, taking pills and drugs, and finally resorting to patent medicines, all of which gave me temporary relief, as I thought, though now I think that was largely my imagination.

Saw Larson Story In Paper.

"Then I read in the newspapers of James Austin Larson and his Teleconi treatment, and determined to give it a trial. I am glad I did so. After the first treatment I noticed that there was a vast difference in my condition. I felt, as the treatments progressed, that I was getting better and better, until now I have no trouble whatever, and am filling out my course of treatment to make sure of no recurrence of the trouble. I am satisfied that my cure will be permanent. I judge by my condition, which is at present perfect—something I have been unable to say before in seven months.

"The first night after taking a Teleconi treatment I could scarcely sleep, owing to the peculiar sensations resulting from the treatment. There was a peculiar glow in my body, and I could feel that nature was actively at work. After the third treatment I slept well—absolutely no wakefulness, as had been my experience prior to taking the vibration treatment administered by James Austin Larson. When I arose the next morning I realized that I was a different man—that some mysterious influence was making me better, and hope came to me strongly. I felt that at last I was on the right track, and was certain I would be cured.

Better Than in Twenty Years.

"Today," continued Mr. Olson, "I am better than I have been in twenty years. I feel stronger, younger, more energetic in every way, and there is no trace of my old complaint—constipation. And the relief is not such as I get from taking pills. Then I knew that the old trouble would return. Now I feel that it will not. Why I gained three pounds in weight during the past week. My appetite is fine, my food tastes right—which it did not prior to resorting to Teleconi. Before I would sit down to the table not knowing what I wanted to eat, and after eating I usually felt miserable. Now I know what I want, enjoy my food and feel that it does me good."

Mr. Olson's looks corroborate his statements. His eyes are clear and bright, his step elastic and his voice cheery.

Is Compared to Famous Lorenz

Originator of Teleconi Treatment Said to Be on His Way to Winnipeg.

The Cure of Mrs. Reuben Cross, Formerly of That City, Attracts Great Attention There.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 6—A man who is said to be as great as Lorenz, the Vienna bloodless surgeon, spent a few hours in this city today and was besieged with a large number of afflicted people. Lorenz hailed from Vienna; James Austin Larson, who is now attracting the attention of the medical world, is of Scandinavian extraction, and claims to be the inventor of Teleconi, a vibration treatment.

Much credit is given this treatment by those who know. It is claimed that the treatment is less severe, but attains just as great results as Lorenz's famous bloodless treatment. It will be remembered that Lorenz came from his foreign home to treat little Lolita Armour, the daughter of the millionaire packer of Chicago. The results are already a matter of history. The little girl is entirely well. James Austin Larson goes from here to Winnipeg, Manitoba, after spending a few days in resting at Excelsior Springs, Mo., and his mission is not unlike that of Lorenz in visiting this country.

A few years ago Mr. Reuben Cross was a prominent business man of Winnipeg, but had to sell out and leave the city on account of his wife's health. Mr. Cross spent much time and money in travel, but finally had to stop at Spokane, Wash., on account of his wife breaking completely down and becoming almost entirely paralyzed. Her brain, as well as her body, ceased to do its work. Several thousand dollars were spent in ordinary medical treatment, without benefit. That is where James Austin Larson became famous in the West, which fame has spread to Winnipeg. Mr. Larson was at that time making a trip through the West and was persuaded to discontinue his trip long enough to attempt the cure of this woman. The experiment was an entire success, and today Mrs. Cross is a well woman.

It is said that a large fund has been subscribed by prominent society people of Winnipeg to get Mr. Larson to come there and treat a number of cases similar to that of Mrs. Cross.

There is a great deal of conjecture among medical men as to the effect that this new treatment will have on the treatment of disease. Some contend that it marks an epoch in the cure of disease, while others claim that it is a fad and will die out, but while the medical men differ, Teleconi continues to occupy the center of attraction, and some wonderful cures are reported for it.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Prominent St. Louis Man Stanch Friend of Teleconi

A well-known man living at 751 N. Euclid av. says it cured him of Constipation and Rheumatism.

"Teleconi is all that is claimed for it in the treatment of abdominal complaints, and it has cured me of constipation," said a prominent citizen of 751 N. Euclid av., St. Louis. I have enough Scotch and English in me to make me bullheaded and I would be just the same the other way if I didn't think it was all right. Curing the torpid condition has made my head clear, cured me entirely of rheumatism and made my circulation better than it has been for years. The treatment is very beneficial and entirely satisfactory. Of course, I naturally dislike publicity, but a sense of fairness to the originator as well as to my many friends causes me to give my unqualified endorsement to the work of the Man of Teleconi."

The gentleman mentioned is one of St. Louis' prominent men, and is associated in a high official capacity with one of the leading wholesale houses of the city, and his name can be had upon application to Mr. Larson's secretary.

Treated the Nurse of Queen Victoria

While in Vancouver James Austin Larson Made a Convert of the Royal Nurse.

IS A STANCH TELECONITE

Declares That Teleconi Is the Greatest Treatment in the World for Weak and Ailing Women.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 10.—James Austin Larson and his new curative science of Teleconi, have an open passport into the royal family of England through his treatment, while here, of the nurse to the Queen and her family.

Martha Stuart Bevis was with the Queen's family for many years during the life of the beloved Victoria, and officiated as head nurse at the birth of Princess Eugenia, who is now the Queen of Spain. Mrs. Bevis also nursed King Edward's sister, who, by her marriage to the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha of Russia, became a Duchess of Russia. Previous to that, this refined and highly proficient nurse was in attendance upon Lady McCullough during that eminent lady's regal trip through Australia.

Mrs. Bevis has many very valuable presents given her by Queen Victoria and other members of the royal family as tokens of the high esteem in which she was held and in appreciation of her skill as a nurse. Some of these presents are of such rare value and are cherished by Mrs. Bevis as being so sacred that she deems it improper to exhibit them to the common eye.

The indorsement of the famous treatment by Mrs. Bevis has aroused great interest here in the Man of Teleconi and his work.

"It is the greatest treatment in the world for weak and ailing women," she said. "I know from my own experience that this new treatment will cure constipation, torpid liver and female complaints. I have suffered for years in that way, taking treatment from the best physicians and surgeons of England. My position gave me free access to the royal physicians of the mother country, but they only gave me temporary relief.

"I am cured now by this wonderful American science called Teleconi, originated by James Austin Larson, whom I consider the peer of any scientist in the world."

In this day and age of isms it is a pleasure to find at least one of the new sciences deserving of such high commendation.—St. Paul Daily News.

Teleconi Cures Constipation Case

Another Triumph for New Science as Originated by J. Austin Larson.

Frederick Anderson, 4415 North Tenth Street, Tacoma, Testifies to the Efficacy of the Teleconi Treatment.

(Tacoma News.)

"Nothing succeeds like success," said Fred Anderson, who resides at 4415 North Tenth street, to a newspaperman who met him in the corridor of the hotel. Mr. Anderson had just emerged from the rooms of J. Austin Larson and had greeted the reporter, with whom he has a speaking acquaintance. The remark followed a salutation by the writer:

"How are you progressing with Teleconi?"

"In a few days," said Mr. Anderson, "I may want to tell you something about my case. I think sufferers should know where to turn for relief, and I am about convinced that Mr. Larson will master my trouble, which is chronic constipation."

Endorses Teleconi.

The next day the reporter received word that Mr. Anderson had a story to tell. The journey to 4415 North Tenth was made, and Mr. Anderson was found in a cozy cottage, where he gave the following interview:

"You have tested Teleconi?"

"I have had some six treatments," responded Mr. Anderson, "and I am free to state that they have done me far more good than I have been done by doctors and osteopaths, drugs and other alleged remedies. I would not give a testimonial if I had the slightest doubt as to having been benefited. That is why I did not go into details at the hotel. For seven years I have been a victim of constipation. I have been compelled during that period to constantly stimulate the action of my digestive organs or to suffer the tortures of the condemned. Look on that shelf," said Mr. Anderson.

There were bottles and boxes of drugs where the speaker pointed, and he added that he had emptied many that were not now there.

Osteopaths Failed.

"After having vainly sought relief with physicians who give drugs," said Mr. Anderson, "I finally turned to the osteopaths. Four of them promised me much and gave me nothing. In order to stimulate action I was forced back to the drugs that gave temporary relief, which the osteopaths seemed unable to give. I despaired of ever gaining permanent relief, and had about made up my mind to abandon the so-called healers, and manage to get along with artificial digestion.

Hears of Mr. Larson.

"About that time I read of some of the cures effected by J. Austin Larson, and determined to give Teleconi a test. I told Mr. Larson that for seven years I had been a victim of constipation, but he said that he could relieve me, and I started in. I actually felt the effect of the first treatment to such extent that the night after taking it I seemed to be burning up. I could scarcely sleep at all because of this peculiar sensation. Improvement came rapidly as I took treatments, and today I can frankly state that I am a new man, and that I have not felt so well in seven years of suffering from constipation. My bowels, which seemed dead, are now apparently well. There is life in them, and I can feel it. In fact, I feel more alive all over the body. As I have told you, for seven years there was not a day during which I failed to take some sort of medicine to alleviate my suffering and keep my bowels in action. Since taking the Teleconi treatments with Mr. Larson I have not taken a dose of any kind of medicine, and feel like a whole man. For years I had a terrible pain in the side that kept me awake nights. Even that has improved under the Teleconi treatment, and later on I may have something to say with reference to the good done in that direction."—Adv.

OH, CANDIDATE! REVEAL ALL, IS VOTERS' DEMAND

Questions as to Views, Past, Family, Business, Come in Every Mail.

BLANKS FOR ANSWERS

Are You Porch Climber, Night Rider, Psalm Singer? Among Things Asked.

The days of the candidates are full of trouble. Every mail brings them formidable lists of questions from all conceivable kinds of organizations.

The questions vary from the pertinent one touching the candidate's fitness for the offices they are seeking to their views on the whole range of public questions.

For instance, the West End Business Men's League, composed of numerous influential citizens and voters, demands to know whether the candidates are in favor of woman suffrage.

The League declares it is in favor of allowing women to vote, along with the initiative, referendum, recall and scores of other reforms. There is the intimation in the interrogations that unless the candidates look at the questions through the same glasses as the voters of the West End Club, they will be scratched on election day.

Ask About Their Families.

The Municipal Voters' League started the flood of question lists with one containing 17 interrogatories, and a blank space for the names of six references. This list asks candidates for date and place of birth, educational institutions attended, whether they are married or single, and if married what family the candidate has.

Some of the candidates believe this is an effort to find out whether they are followers of Theodore Roosevelt in the matter of perpetuation of the race.

The German-American Alliance, which is also investigating the candidates, has not yet fired its broadside of questions. This list, when it does come, is expected to deal voluminously with the "lid" and personal liberty.

Big or Little Cinch?

N. P. L. Rosch, president of the Commoners' Association, has prepared a remarkable list of questions for candidates and members of the Municipal Voters' League. Mr. Rosch says:

"Do you live west of Grand avenue?"

"Are you a member of the Big Cinch?"

"Are you a stock gambler?"

"Are you a night rider?"

"Are you a porch climber?"

"Are you a psalm singer?"

"Are you a professional lobbyist?"

"Are you a member of the Jefferson Club?"

"Are you a member of the Little Cinch?"

"Are you from Kentucky or Tennessee?"

"Have you ever been charged with boodling?"

"Have you any stock in the North American Co.?"

"Have you any stock in any of the public utility corporations?"

Rosch is having thousands of copies of the questions printed for distribution at the political meetings.

PASTOR SAYS MAYOR WELLS IS "GREAT AND GOOD MAN"

MAYOR ROLLA WELLS.

Dr. Williamson Tells Congregation Executive Is Unjustly Criticised.

THAT Mayor Rolla Wells "is a great and noble man," was declared by the Rev. William J. Williamson in his Sunday morning sermon at the Third Baptist Church.

"We have in our city," said Dr. Williamson, "as great a man as ever sat in the Mayor's chair in St. Louis—a man whose family has always been honored by the city. He is a man of wealth and culture, and, did he choose, he could remain far away from any anxious care. No man has ever seriously questioned his high honor and integrity, and yet it is his lot to be almost daily unjustly criticised. He has patiently borne all without resentment.

"When a task of governing a great city such as this is so thankless, is it any wonder that the members of the Republican City Committee besought a dozen prominent men to go on the ticket as Mayor?

"Kipling's great poem, 'The White Man's Burden,' characterizes all men and women who fulfill the noblest part in life as those who bear criticism in silence and meet unjust accusations with a prayer for blessing in the spirit of Christ."

WELLS IS STRONG SUPPORTER OF WOERNER FOR MAYORALTY

City Executive Believes Democratic Nominee Is Right Man to Succeed Him.

Mayor Wells, in an interview given Monday to a Post-Dispatch reporter, gave a personal indorsement of the strongest character to four Democratic nominees for city office—Woerner for Mayor, Player for Comptroller, Travilla for President of the Board of Public Improvements and Hagerman for Collector.

The Mayor said he considered the other Democratic nominees excellent men, but that he singled out the four for especial commendation because of his thorough acquaintance with them. All have served the city under Mayor Wells, Player and Hagerman in the positions to which they seek re-election, Woerner and Travilla in appointive posts.

"I don't see how the people of St. Louis can improve on these men," said the Mayor of the four candidates.

"Woerner is a man of poise, who knows the municipals laws, knows the city's needs and has ability and integrity which will enable him to give St. Louis an excellent administration."

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

Mr. Woerner's former rivals for the Democratic nomination will occupy seats on the stage as vice-presidents. Dr. John H. Simon and Dr. William R. Faulkner have accepted the invitation of the Democratic City Committee to serve as vice-presidents, and Henry Rolfes, who was another candidate for the mayoralty nomination, will preside.

Each ward will send large delegations, some of them headed by drum corps. Among the 100 vice-presidents who will sit on the stage are ex-Judge O'Neil Ryan, J. V. S. Barrett, who was talked of as an independent candidate for Mayor, Col. Nichols Bell, Joseph L. Hornsby, Charles F. The City Committee has leased the entire fifth floor of the Navarre Building, Sixth and Chrestnut streets, for campaign headquarters. An army of workers will take charge of the headquarters Monday or Tuesday and tons of literature will be sent to voters. The City Committee will also retain its permanent headquarters in the Liggett Building.

The committee will arrange for ward meetings throughout the city. Mass meetings will be held almost every night until the close of the campaign. Plans are being made for a big demonstration at the Coliseum or Odeon as the closing feature of the campaign.

FEMININE HEARTS FLUTTER AT CENTURY MILLINERY DISPLAY

Very Latest Creations From Paris Are Just Utterly Utter, That's All.

If any woman in St. Louis is in doubt as to what are the very proper styles in millinery this spring she may set her doubts at rest by a look into the show windows of the Century Millinery Co., 615 North Broadway. In there is a collection of hats created in Paris, the fashion center of the world, and just arrived.

Two of these hats are from the Parisian art shop of Esther Mayer, and another is from the wonderfully deft and artistic fingers of Madame Georgette. These hats, however, are not for the purse of the ordinary woman. They cost from $75 to $100.

But the Century store makes a specialty of hats at popular prices that are exact imitations of these Parisian creations and that are really so good in themselves that only an expert milliner herself could detect the difference. Of these hats at popular prices the Century has a great display on the second floor.

They include all the very newest shapes and styles and shades. In colors there are the old rose, the wistaria about which all women are raving this spring, and many different shades of old army blue and fawn color.

Many of the imported patterns are loaded with plumes. Others are trimmed in small flowers.

H. C. Orear, manager of the store, said Monday that he was not sure whether the large or small hats would be the fashion this spring, but in any event he has a large line in each style, and women and girls can take their choice.

"L" TRAIN TOTTERS OVER EDGE OF STRUCTURE AFTER CRASH

Many Are Injured When Chicago Crowd Stampedes for Doors.

CHICAGO, March 15.—A dozen persons were injured today when an elevated express train collided with a local. One car of the local train crowded with passengers leaped from the track and hung suspended over the edge of the elevated structure.

There was a wild panic on both trains and this caused the injuries of most of the victims. The people in the cars rushed for the platforms, causing a terrific crush against the gates.

Police ambulances took all the injured to hospitals, but none of them is dangerously hurt.

HOWE DENIES RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE JUVENILE COURT BILL

Republican Chairman Puts Himself on Record as Being Opposed to Measure.

Jeptha D. Howe, chairman of the Republican City Committee, has written a letter to the Post-Dispatch denying that the committee had anything to do with the drafting of the bill to place the Juvenile Court appointments in the hands of the Circuit Clerk and saying that he does not believe Representative Trieseler made such a statement, which was credited to him in a special message to the Post-Dispatch from its Jefferson City correspondent.

Representative Trieseler, however, discussed the publication of his remark with the Post-Dispatch representative several times and made no denial whatever of the language credited to him. Now the Rev. C. E. Remick of Christ Church Cathedral, who was present at the Judiciary Committee meeting March 4, says:

"Mr. E. M. Grossman was speaking before the committeed handling the bill in Jeferson City two weeks ago and made some reference to the report that 'Tub' Becker had drawn the bill under consideration. Mr. Trieseler arose and said: 'Don't you know that Becker had nothing to do with that bill, but that it was prepared by the Republican City Committee?' Mr. Trieseler then added: 'That is the fact.' As near as I can recall that was his language. At any rate, that was the substance of what he said."

This is also Mr. Grossman's recollection of the incident.

In his letter to the Post-Dispatch, Howe says:

"I do not believe that Representative Trieseler made this statement, because it has no foundation in fact. I never knew that such a bill was introduced until on my return from Washington I received a letter from Mr. E. C. Elliott on the subject. I wrote Mr. Elliott yesterday (the Howe letter is dated March 13) that I was positively opposed to the bill."

The letter adds that the writer was so firmly against dragging the Juvenile Court into politics that he had not even tried to prevent such a movement, for fear someone might charge that he was inspired by a desire for party political advantage.

Memorial Without Spoken Words.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Mrs. Marshall Field has engaged Dr. Ludwig Wullner, at a cost of $1000, to sing for one hour next Wednesday afternoon at a concert which she will give in memory of the late Mrs. Augustus N. Eddy, her sister. The concert is believed to be the first of its kind ever given in Chicago, a memorial service without spoken words.

SMALL BOY CRUSHED UNDER BALANCED ROCK HE UPSETS

Four-Year-Old Killed While Playing With Natural Curiosity in Park.

MIDDLETON, N. Y., March —A balanced rock weighing two tons, which has been one of the curiosities in Tuxedo Park, was upset by a small boy yesterday afternoon, crushing him beneath its great weight and causing practically instant death.

The victim was Frederick Cox, the 4-year-old son of William Cox, a park policeman. Frederick attempted to climb to the top of the rock while his little sister looked on and laughed. Suddenly the immense stone rolled over and pinned his body underneath it.

It required nearly an hour's work to move the stone so that the crushed form could be taken from under it.

FREEHOLDERS WILL ASK $25,000 FOR EXPENSES

Sum Believed to Be Necessary for Counsel and Clerical Help of Charter Revisors.

An ordinance appropriating $25,000 to defray the preliminary expenses of the Freeholders' Charter Revision Board will be introduced in the Council and House of Delegates Tuesday. The bill is being prepared by City Counselor Bates.

At a meeting of a subcommittee of the Freeholders with Mr. Bates at the St. Louis Club Sunday it was decided to ask for the appropriation before the expiration of the present Municipal Assembly, as several weeks would be required to get an appropriation bill through the new Assembly. Each branch of the present Assembly will be asked to hold sufficient special meetings to pass the bill.

The money is needed to employ counsel, secretaries, stenographers and clerks. It is anticipated that some State legislation will be required and members of the board as anxious to have it passed by the present General Assembly.

THOUSANDS CROWD NUGENTS TO BUY CLOTHING AT HALF PRICE

Entire Werner Brothers' Stock, Bought at Auction, Placed on Sale.

A crowd of buyers that required several police officers to keep it in line was waiting at the doors of the B. Nugent & Bro.'s store at Broadway and Washington avenue long before the doors were opened at 8 o'clock Monday morning.

The magnet that drew all of these and that brought the thousands that came all throughout the day was the stock of the Werner Bros. Mercantile Co., 708 Olive street, which was bought at public auction last week by "Nugents" and was placed on sale Monday. Every article of men's and boys' clothing and furnishing goods that was in the Werner store is on sale at "Nugents" and at exactly half price. This is one of the sales where "half price" is a reality. On the tags are plainly marked the Werner figures and beneath them the "Nugent" figures.

There are Earl & Wilson collors which sold at 25 cents and which are now half of that, and great piles of collars at 5 cents, and walking canes and umbrellas at half the original price.

The sale will continue all this week.

DOCTOR TELLS HOFFMANN NOT TO QUIT BOARD

Indorsed for His Place, Physician Says Freeholder Should Stick.

POINTS TO DISCORD

Declares Members of Profession Appear Divided and Deserve Odium.

Dr. John C. Morfit, indorsed by the St. Louis Medical Society for membership on the Board of Freeholders, has written a letter to August H. Hoffmann, who offered to resign his position on the bi-partisan freeholders' ticket in order that a physician might be put in his place.

Dr. Morfit, in his letter, advises Mr. Hoffmann not to resign, "without a full knowledge of all the facts." The facts, as he states them, include the medical and political obstacles which have arisen to the carrying out of Mr. Hoffmann's purpose.

The letter, in part, is as follows:

Since the nominees for the Board of Freeholders were selected, there has been considerable resentment among physicians bcause no one of their number was chosen by the political committees. This feeling has been reflected in the press, and The Post-Dispatch particularly has, with laudable motives, taken up the matter, which resulted in the very generous offer on your part to resign and make way for a medical representative. The profession has shown its appreciation of this generous attitude taken by you.

The medical and dental professions have indorsed several men whom they deem fit to represent the medical interests of the people and there has been little real difference of opinion in the professional circles on this matter. However, it is a fact of common knowledge that a few physicians have brought to bear such strong political influence as to make it appear that the profession is discordant and undecided, if not indifferent. As long as these conditions endure it is but natural, and probably just, that the profession should suffer that odium, which the questionable action of some of its members must necessarily inspire.

As I am one of the several urged and indorsed to succeed you should you resign, I would not have you take this step without full knowledge of the facts. I want to express to you my firm conviction that there is no reason why you should not reconsider your determination and refuse to resign.

Mr. Hoffmann has stated in recent interviews that he will not resign unless he is assured that his original plan can be carried out in a manner satisfactory to the medical profession and acceptable to the political interests which have framed the freeholders' ticket.

STYLES IN MILLINERY THIS YEAR ARE UNUSUALLY VARIED

Display at Sonnenfeld's Opening Runs From Extremes to Conservative Models.

Women who have been led to believe that to be in perfect style this season they must wear hats with crowns eight inches high and brims running straight down to the shoulders, will find on investigation that styles much less extreme and even more modest than prevailed last season are shown in millinery establishments.

At the opening at Sonnenfeld's Monday, the many visitors saw hats of every style which will be worn this season. They varied all the way from the stovepipe hat with very little trimming to broad-brimmed hats covered with every conceivable kind of foliage and fruits.

The stovepipe, one of the most extreme styles, is patterned very closely after the dress hat which has been for so many years the exclusive right of man to wear. Its difference lies in the fact that the brim is turned down and is slightly wider, and that velvet ribbons and flowers are permitted on it.

There are also shown the twentieth century hats, with extreme high crowns and long brims reaching down almost to the shoulders on the sides and back. The woman who wears a low crown, trimmed as in former years with foliage, flowers and quills, will be in style, however.

The leading styles shown in suits and gowns this season are in ashes of roses, light tan and reseda. The Zaiss model in suits is of the latest. The coat is cut on lines entirely new, there being no under-seam.

Waists are unusually dainty this season. The new Dutch collar is quite in vogue. The Sonnenfeld opening continues Monday and Tuesday.

FOLLOWS BROTHER AND GIRL IN SELF-INFLICTED DEATH

Laborer Kills Himself at Madison, Ill., Two Weeks After Double Suicide.

After drinking heavily for several days, Robert Nichols, a laborer, employed in the American Car and Foundry shops, killed himself by drinking carbolic acid at the home of his foster mother, Mrs. Joseph Bauer, at Madison, Ill., Sunday.

Two weeks ago his brother, John, whom he had not seen for six years, shot and killed himself at Benton, Ill., following the suicide of his sweetheart, Miss Beryl Somers, who was despondent because her parents had forbidden her to keep company with John.

ZOO COBRA WHIPS SNAKE AND LIZARD, THEN EATS 'EM UP

Iguana Divides Into Two Fighting Forces After Starting Trouble.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The King Cobra at the Bronx Zoo is 11 feet long, and the whole 11 feet were fighting yesterday. His opponents were a water snake and an iguana, or giant lizard.

All three reptiles had been living in peace together all winter in their glass compartment, and it was supposed they were real good friends, but a dispute arose yesterday between the cobra and the iguana and in a sudden fit of foolish rage the iguana went for the cobra and bit him.

Instantly the cobra spread his hood and gave battle, but the iguana took an unfair advantage of him then and there by disjointing himself and coming apart. The big lizard gave himself a shake, and lo: there were two of him—the iguana proper and the iguana's tail, both much alive and active.

Then the water snake took a hand and went for the cobra, too, but the cobra gave him just one bite and the snake went into a corner, curled up and died.

The tailless iguana kept right at the cobra, but the latter did not seem to care much. He had espied the tail cavorting around the cage, and it interested him so much that he made a leap for it, caught it and calmly swallowed it.

That gave him a taste for iguana meat, so he next caught the iguana and swallowed him after his tail. Then the water snake was taken for dessert, and that ended the fight. Now the cobra is living alone.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE PLAN TO REHABILITATE PARTY

Meeting of State Body Called for Tuesday at Southern Hotel.

A meeting of the Democratic State Committee will be held at the Southern Hotel Tuesday at 1 p. m. to consider plans to rehabilitate the party in Missouri. A special committee, of which A. S. Harty of Bloomfield, secretary of the State Committee, is chairman, was appointed some time ago to prepare a plan for the reorganization of the party.

Mr. Harty has notified the members of the State Committee that his subcommittee will be ready to report Tuesday. Chairman Thomas L. Rubey of the State Committee says he does not now know what the plan contemplates.

Scarritt-Comstock Furniture Co.'s Clearing Sale Now in Progress.

A. Lincoln said in effect, you may fool people some times, but not every time. The reliable house of today should fool people none of the time. People who buy furniture have found that the advertiser who backs up his newspaper representation is the one to always place their business with.

The Scarritt-Comstock Furniture Co. is now conducting a clearance sale, in which everything in their great establishment is included. Marks in plain figures are placed on nearly 10,000 different pieces of goods, showing genuine reductions up to 50 per cent.

This annual sale, it is said, the people of St. Louis have found to be a genuine reduction sale for the express purpose of relieving their stock of discontinued patterns and odd pieces.

It has been a feature for many years and is liberally patronized by the rich and the poor, for in this sale time terms are arranged for, if so desired. The complete furniture for a number of the new homes building has been bought in advance—the present saving being many times more than the cost of caring for it until the completion of the homes.

Like Excitement.

FAMOUS MAGNIFICENT SPRING OPENING ATTRACTS GREAT CROWDS

The new spring season was ushered in at Famous today under the most promising circumstances. Thousands are attending this spring clothes exhibit. Every department of this great store is decked out in new attire. The store throughout presents an awe-inspiring spectacle. The live palms and greens form a picturesque background for the varigated new spring colors that abound in every section. The artistic displays throughout cannot but evoke admiration.

"The stocks this season are much larger and much better assorted than ever shown and to show what we think of conditions this spring, we have prepared for the biggest volume of business in our career," one of the managers explained.

In the women's section on the third floor the crowds were greatest. There, on exhibit, were all the new conceptions in suits, dresses, coats, skirts, waists and petticoats, in every novel style idea to thoroughly please every femenine fancy. Clothes with all those new and dainty touches that distinguish them from the past season's styles.

The millinery section was the scene of much enthusiasm. Hundreds of spectators visited this department and marvelled at the beauty and becomingness of the new headwear creations that were on display. The showing is very extensive. All the new models in corsets are shown.

The misses' and children's section, infants' wear section and muslin garment section were crowded with eager visitors who were loud in their praises of the practical styles exhibited.

The men's and boys' department, on the second floor, which, by the way, is the largest clothing floor in the United States, is showing the most comprehensive clothing stocks ever assembled in this city. America's best clothes makers, including Rogers, Peet & Co. of New York, are represented.

The new silks and dress goods, linens and cottons, ribbons, neckwear, laces, nets, embroidery, hosiery, footwear, jewelry, leather goods, men's furnishing goods, etc., are lavishly displayed.

Famous opening days are not only exhibition days, but profitable shopping days as well. As an added incentive for your visit, Famous offers souvenir opening specials in every department, today, on this spring's newest and most desired merchandise. The swiftest selling was manifest throughout the store.

Mr. Ricalton is a hunter of experience and was in South Africa during the Boer War. He is both a faunal naturalist and entomologist.

"It Helped Me"

"I was just a walking skeleton," writes Mrs. Beatrice Johnson of Miami, Okla., "and they all thought I would die; but, by the help of your good medicine, Cardui, I am now well and weigh 138½ pounds.

"Before I took Cardui I had suffered with female troubles for 8 years. Sometimes, at certain times, my back would ache for a week or ten days. Cardui helped me, and was the only relief I could find. I cannot praise it enough, for the good it did me."

Our faith in the superior remedial qualities of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is so strong that we promise to return your money—without question or quibble—if it does not do what we claim it will.

Because it contains Resorcin, Beta Napthol, Pilocarpin, Borax, Glycerin and Alcohol in perfect combination, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic provides the softening, cleansing, antiseptic, germicidal, stimulating and nourishing properties, so desirable and necessary for the successful treatment of scalp and hair troubles.

You must realize that we would not dare back up our claims with such a liberal offer unless we were positive that we can substantiate our statements in every particular, and the most skeptical person should at least be willing to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk.

BRYAN SAYS HE HAS WANTED TO GO TO THE UNITED STATES SENATE SINCE HE WAS A BOY

CHICAGO, March 15.—William J. Bryan, in an interview here today, impressed his auditors with the idea that he would be a receptive, if not active, candidate for the United States Senate from Nebraska in 1911 to succeed Elmer J. Burkett, Republican.

"Nebraska has adopted the Oregon plan of popular elections," said Mr. Bryan. "I do not know yet whether I will be a candidate. A senatorship I aspired to even when a boy. If there seems to be a good chance to elect to the Senate from Nebraska some other Democrat, it will please me better than to be a candidate myself. I have said repeatedly that I hope I may never again be a candidate for office.

"I would not say that I would never, under any circumstances, accept the nomination, because no one is wise enough to look into the future and decide on conditions in advance. I think the Democratic party is in better condition than at any time since 1892 and that it has an excellent chance to get control of Congress in 1910."

NEW MASTER OF CEREMONIES IS CHOSEN FOR WHITE HOUSE

Spencer Cosby Succeeds Maj. Bromwell, the Man Who Bent One Ear to Visitors.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Maj. Chas. J. Bromwell, technically superintendent of public buildings and grounds, but actually master of ceremonies at the White House, has been sent to Milwaukee. He will take the place there of Maj. William V. Judson, in charge of harbor improvements on Lake Michigan.

Maj. Spencer Cosby has been promoted from engineer commissioner of the district to the superintendency of public buildings and grounds, and Maj. Judson will become commissioner.

The position is the one held here by Col. Theodore E. Bingham, now Police Commissioner in New York. Those who have attended White House receptions will remember Maj. Bromwell, as the major domo, the man who bent one ear to catch their names and passed it on to the President.

Cause of the Racket.

From the Philadelphia Telegraph.

Hotel Clerk: What made all that racket in your room last night?

Guest: I had on combination underwear and lost the combination.

Time for Housecleaning.

When the spring sunshine filters into the cracks and crannies where cold and darkness has been present all winter, it seems to bring to life all the cockroaches, water bugs and other vermin that have lain dormant throughout the cold weather.

Now is the time, when spring housecleaning is under way, and the scrub-brush and hot water brigade is at work, to make war on the bugs and exterminate them.

Ordinary hot water will not kill a cockroach. The Department of Agriculture at Washington has issued a special bulletin telling best how to exterminate. This advises the use of phosphorus paste, which can be obtained at any drug store.

Good housewives will go a step further and rid the premises of rats and mice at the same time. The best plan is to buy from the druggist some well-known exterminator which will "drive them out of the house to die."

WOMAN WHO STOLE NEPHEW 7 YEARS AGO RETURNS HOME

Miss Ely, Musician, Who Baffled All Search, Attends Mother's Funeral.

CHICAGO, March 15.—Miss Florence Ely, Vassar graduate and noted musician, who seven years ago kidnapped her 14-year-old nephew, Frank Ely Rogers and baffled all search, returned to Chicago recently and attended her mother's funeral, Feb. 6. The boy returned three years ago, but refused to say anything about his aunt except to his parents.

The lad, at the time of the kidnaping, was about to be sent off to school to keep him away from his aunt, who had deevloped a mad infatuation for him. She was then 37 years of age. Today Mr Rogers said Miss Ely was then suffering from a mental illness that explained her conduct, but it is said she has fully recovered and is with friends. Young Rogers is attending a manual training school.

New Oliver No. 5

Sets Swiftest Pace Ever Known in Typewriter Selling

The wonderful new model, Oliver No. 5, has taken the market by storm.

Its reception by the public has exceeded in enthusiasm anything we had dared to anticipate.

Employers and stenographers alike have welcomed it as the one machine that answers the multiplied needs of the hour.

The cry is for Speed! Speed! Speed!—and the Oliver responds.

The demand for Durability is filled by the sturdy, steel-clad Oliver.

To call for a writing machine that will do many things and do each of them equally well, the Oliver answers with its unexampled versatility.

—Its visible writing saves the strain on eye and brain.

—It's legibility lends beauty to its work. The letters that bear the Oliver imprint are the letters that seem to speak.

Oliver No. 5 fairly bristles with new and exclusive time-and-money-saving features. We have space to mention only a few of the more important ones.

—Disappearing Indicator shows exact printing point.

—Balance Shifting Mechanism saves operative effort.

—Line Ruling Device is fine for tabulated work.

—Double Release doubles convenience.

—Non-Vibrating Base insures stability. Yet with all of these added improvements, we have still further simplified the Oliver—by fusing brains with metal.

Oliver No. 5 is a dream come true—the dream of Thomas Oliver crystalized into this wonderful mechanism of shining steel that embodies every possible requirement of a perfect writing machine.

THE WHITEWASHING OF SMITH.

It is very plain that the exoneration of Chief of Detectives Smith was a preconcerted affair, cut and dried. The whitewash was prepared and was promptly laid on. The Board of Police Commissioners took Smith's statement and the reports of the officers who accompanied him. An affidavit of a newspaper reporter who witnessed the arrest of Miss Hallen was also read. The rule of common sense, reason and justice, to "hear the other side," was disregarded and Smith has the sanction of the Board for his acts.

It is inconceivable that anybody will have the impudence to say that these acts were not unlawful and an outrageous violation of rights guaranteed to every citizen. Smith forced his way into the house and made the arrest without a warrant. That is the essence of the complaint and Smith does not deny it.

The Constitution of Missouri provides that "the people shall be secure in their persons, papers, homes and effects from unreasonable searches and seizures, and no warrant to search any place or seize any person or thing shall issue without describing the place to be searched or the person to be seized as nearly as may be, nor without probable cause supported by oath or affirmation reduced to writing."

If the Chief of Detectives knew any probable cause why did he not obtain a warrant?

The hearing by the Board of Police Commissioners leaves the case just where they found it. But we may hope that Gov. Hadley will not let it drop without a searching inquiry, which should disclose all the facts.

According to the estimate of the compiling company the new city directory gives St. Louis a population of 761,000, an increase of 10,000 over last year's estimate. The basis of calculation employed in reaching these figures is said to be ultra conservative, a good quality in the long run.

◆◆◆

ADVERTISING A CITY.

Mr. Markham's strictures on the newspapers for failure to "boost" St. Louis raises the question of the best boosting methods.

Generally speaking municipal advertising is a good thing if it advertises the merits of the city and does not ostentatiously ignore conditions which ought to be corrected. But the notion that citizens and newspapers should join in a blatant chorus of unbridled praise is essentially provincial and no man who has the faintest idea of real municipal greatness will add his voice to it.

In every city there are public conditions—political and social—which are elements of weakness. The will and intelligence of citizens and newspapers should be directed to the improvement and if possible the extinction of such conditions. And if it requires a stiff wind of publicity to rouse the community to action the wind should be allowed to blow. A conspiracy of silence "for fear of hurting trade" is as rational as it would be for a man steadily to deny the existence of a disease in his blood until it breaks out through his skin. If there is anything wrong, right it, as speedily as possible. The rule applies both to society and to individuals.

The provincial spirit is too much in evidence in the eagerness of so many boosters to cry up advantages which speak for themselves. The man who is sure of his personal power never goes about bragging of it. He who is certain of his social position is not in the habit of presenting evidence of the fact.

And so a city which has manifest advantages needs no ear-splitting "barkers." Villages and towns which have not "arrived" may properly hire a brass band and distribute dodgers. A city which has in fact arrived needs no noisy certificate to convince the world of its rank and standing.

The sum of it is that the best advertising for a city is the actual fact that it possesses the merits which make it attractive. When it is observed that the citizens resolutely expose and correct conditions which make for weakness and evil, instead of keeping still about them, the reputation of that city rises still higher.

A delegation of New York City ministers recently appealed to the Legislature in Albany to amend the excise law so that saloons may be opened on Sundays between 1 and 11 p. m. on payment of one-fourth the existing license fee. The argument is made that the present law permitting "hotels" to sell liquor on Sundays has filled the town with undesirable and disorderly rooming houses. St. Louis can watch the progress of the New York fight against puritanical methods with interest.

SUPREME COURT RELIEF.

In an article published on the editorial page of the Sunday Post-Dispatch Judge Rombauer formerly of the Court of Appeals, discussing the bills pending in the State Legislature to relieve the docket of the Supreme Court opposed the creation of an additional Court of Appeals. He reviewed the three former efforts to create a third appellate court all of which were blocked by gubernatorial vetoes and showed how unnecessary such a court is and how little it would contribute to the end in view, the Supreme Court's relief.

Considering the efficient work of the Supreme Court Commission of 1883 Judge Rombauer concludes that a similiar commission at this time would do the work required in the Supreme Court. He thinks no other legislation needful or desirable. The argument is clear, comprehensive and convincing. We commend it to the Legislature as good counsel.

Since tariff cutting operations are regarded as dangerous to the patient, let us hope the impending one will be thorough.

A SIMPLIFIED ISSUE.

Reduced as nearly as possible to its lowest terms after all legal proceedings and court decisions, the issue between the laws of Missouri and the Standard Oil system is now simplified so that it can be understood at once.

The proceedings against two subsidiary companies, aliases of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, were not directed as an issue against that company. Their ouster from the State was in so much a veto of its operation in Missouri under the names of these two subsidiary corporations, the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and the Republic Oil Co. As an ouster, it is now suspended subject to the final action of the United States Supreme Court.

The Waters-Pierce Oil Co., after paying its fine, remains in the State under suspension of court judgment for past violation of the Missouri law against monopoly combination. Whether the local managers of the company wish it or not, it is admitted that a majority of its stock is controlled by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, as it has been, since it was acquired as part of the general monopoly plan of driving independent corporations out of the oil business in Missouri.

Although it has not succeeded in its plan for securing a trustee representing the Missouri State Government as a member of its trust system, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey has been subjected only to a fuller definition of the laws on the secret evasion of open violation of which its monopoly system depends. The parent monopoly has not been made accountable to law, and there has been no apparent attempt to reach it.

The bonding of police officers with a view to responsibility in civil action may become necessary. But, meanwhile, a policeman who assaults a citizen—man, woman or child—or breaks into a house without a warrant may be held criminally. It is a matter for the Circuit Attorney.

HUMAN NATURE "ON PROBATION."

The report of the probation officer of the St. Louis Juvenile Court has already received the consideration it deserves in one highly important respect. When 38 children out of 152 paroled on good behavior violate their parole, it is an important fact that this is 25 per cent of the total. It shows the great difficulties of perfecting human nature against what have been called the "worst difficulties of a city environment."

After the difficulties have been realized, it is only necessary to turn the percentage around so that the comparison will face forward, to make an important discovery. This is, that in spite of what are supposed to be the worst difficulties of "city environment," the average for the credit of human nature stands 75 out of the possible 100, when the possible 100 is made up of those who have had the greatest disadvantages and the fewest advantages.

In his last and most famous work, his "Sketch of the Progress of the Human Mind," Condorcet predicted its continuous progress in spite of the worst. He did not then have such a favorable showing as this on which to base his prediction. It was made, nevertheless, as many may remember, while he himself was waiting to be guillotined. Taking fully into consideration the fact that his fellow man was about to decapitate him for doing his best, he insisted that humanity is fit to be trusted, that it ought to be trusted and that as it is more fully trusted, there will be a decreasing percentage of the untrustworthy. As far as the St. Louis statistics go in science, they show that this was a scientific view of progress.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

What should the voters do at the April election to promote the best interest of the city? Consider the parties as organized and directed; consider each ticket as a whole and the individual candidates. Limit your letters to not more than 150 words.

A Trio Indorsed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If the people of St. Louis want a clean, honest administration and a model city, independent voters should vote for such men as James Hagerman Jr., Collector; James Y. Player, Comptroller, and James Travilla, men who have been in office for the last four years, and have a record of giving the city a clean and honest adminstration and their records are open to the public for inspection.

INDEPENDENT VOTER.

A Call for Independents.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was present at the real estate banquet held at the Columbian Club last evening and had the opportunity of hearing and seeing both of the candidates for Mayor. Each of the morning papers had it that their favorite candidate was "cheered to an echo." The facts in the case are that neither of the candidates received more applause than common decency would require. They were forbidden to talk "shop" and their remarks were very weak, to say the least. It certainly seems that there is an exceptional opportunity for the City party or some other party to put up up a good, strong man of affairs and win in a walk. The next four years will be a critical time for the City of St. Louis and it certainly seems expedient that better timber be offered the voters than that submitted in the persons of Fredrick H. Kreismann or William F. Woerner.

BURTON McGINNIS.

Boss Candidates Unsafe.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Regarding different candidates, I believe there is not one candidate on the Republican ticket that, if elected, will give satisfaction to honest people of St. Louis, for the simple reason that each and every man on that ticket was put there by Howe, the great political boss, and if they had not promised and pledged themselves to this one-man power they would never have got on the ticket. I, for one, as a stanch Republican, am going to put both tickets together and select what I consider the best men for our city, not for one great silk stocking like Howe. All voters ought to do likewise to get results.

A. HOEHNER.

Educational Picture Shows.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

People differ in their likes and dislikes. Not all of the public wants "only pretty and funny pictures," as "Patron" claims it does. Some of the people have outgrown those things and have reached a stage where they can appreciate an interesting lecture on a current topic or an historical subject when the work is so far above criticism as that recently shown. The writer heard a lecture on "Ancient Rome" at a moving picture show last week which was superior to some he has heard at some of the largest universities of this country. It is an innovation, no doubt, to introduce such subjects for popular entertainment, but hasn't the pendulum swung for enough in the opposite direction? There are many who look forward with interest to the return of the "lecturer and the historian" which "Patron" objects to. Would suggest that there are dozens of places showing every variety of "pretty and funny pictures" where "Patron" should have no trouble in finding something to his liking.

J. SMITH.

Unitarians and the Gospel.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Referring to your editorial in regard to "preachers of the Gospel," will you allow me to say that while the word Gospel should have the widest interpretation with regard to settled ministers authorized to perform marriages, it is a mistake to suppose that the term indicating the Gospel preached by Jesus Christ is inapplicable to Unitarians. Unitarians have never separated from their Christian connection, and both historically and by their teaching are identified with the central teachings of Jesus as recorded in the New Testament. Any discussion which implies that a Unitarian minister does not belong among peachers of the Gospel, in the Christian sense, is misleading and should be cleared of this error. Let me add that if the proposed change in the law would place in the hands of any official the power to determine the connection and standing of ministers with reference to their right to solemnize marriage, such change should be vigorously opposed. This right should be limited to ministers having charge of churches in the State, and in active service, and no officer should be given powers of judicial determination. That a change in the law is needed is clearly shown by the abuses that have crept in under the present lax phraseology. The whole crew of clerical marriage harpies should find their occupation gone. But the change should be made with care, lest powers be conferred which would open the door to grave abuse.

JOHN W. DAY.

Holding Husband's Love.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In your yesterday's Post-Dispatch I read Mme. Hatton on "How to Hold the Love of a Husband." First, I want to say that I am a man 36 years of age, married at the age of 22; love my wife the same now as I did when we were married, regardless of her having a few wrinkles on her face. Second, I absolutely disagree with Mme. Hatton as to deceiving a husband in any sense of the word, be it in regard to the maintainance of beauty, or anything else. There is no man living who will not appreciate the sincerity and honesty of his wife, and the thought of deceiving her husband should not enter the mind of a true woman. Let any woman consider how much less she loved her husband after discovering she had been deceived in some way. And it is the same with a man, and no man with moral habits will ever notice the age on his wife's face. Therefore I want to say, ladies, never deceive your husbands and you will find that they will love you more.

G. E. HARMES.

Improving Market Street.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now that some of its best residents and business men have decided on the moral improvement of Market street, why don't they go to Chief of Police Creecy and demand that the 10-cent shows which cater to the "Men Only" element be shut up at once? There are some of these shows in stores about Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets on Market that are grossly indecent in their method of attracting the passer-by, even if they contain nothing indecent inside. Letters have appeared protesting against these shows, but nothing has been done. Perhaps personal requests may accomplish something.

A BAS THE POSSUM.

From the New York Tribune.

We protest against the possum on special principles. He is a mean and ignoble beast, without a trace of poetry or humor in his make-up, undistinguished by tradition, a parvenu in childish lore. His looks are against him, a most unhandsome creature, who never overcomes the instinctive prejudice of the first impression, much less has he ever inspired affection. Who would think of him as gifted with that genial camaraderie so invincibly suggested by a bear? What noble deed or attribute is associated with his name? A robber of hen roosts at his boldest, he is chiefly distinguished as the most cowardly dissembler in all the animal world. Out upon him!

OUR NEXT PRESIDENT.

From the Hartford Courant.

Somewhere in this country there is a man—presumably about 40 years old now, perhaps a little younger or older—who's going to wake up in the White House the morning of March 5, 1917, President of the United States. The chances are, of course, that he's already in the public career. There's an off chance that his name is at present entirely strange to newspapers and their readers. The one certainty is, that no living person can now pick him out. And he's in equal ignorance today himself of what the fates have decreed for him.

SLOW-MOVING HUMAN NATURE.

From the Providence Journal.

No system of any kind, direct primary or other, will revolutionize human nature. The boss will maintain his supremacy in American politics just so long as the American voters as a whole neglect their duty and leave to the few the responsibilities of all. Whether the instrument be a caucus, a convention, or what not, it may be controlled only by those who use it. And the ordinary voter, even the reformer, generally stays away from every political meeting and not infrequently from the polls as well.

THE ROOSEVELT NEWSPAPER.

From the Springfield Union.

We take it that the kind of newspaper that Brother Roosevelt would like to see more of is the newspaper that is just and fair to all men, that is courageous in its opinions, but does not expect all to agree with it; that has respect for the opinions of others, that makes allowances for the shortcomings of mankind, that prefers to be the bearer of good rather than of evil tidings, that has faith in its country and its countrymen and that in mirroring life as it seeks constantly to be of some benefit to humanity.

ALWAYS THE OLD CONFLICT.

From the Spectator.

Every well-wisher of America will hope that she may produce yet other sons like Lincoln, with his enthusiasm and moderation combined, his tenderness, and plainness, his gravity and sunniness, his logic and strong common sense, all of which expressed themselves in his eagle-eyed penetration in seeing the simplicity of every issue when it is stripped of its caciustry. For it is always the world-old question between right and wrong.

ONE DIFFERENCE.

From the New York Herald.

Pretty good story from Chicago about the absent-minded man who handed the conductor a theater coupon instead of a street car ticket, but it hardly goes. You do get a seat in a theater.

MAN'S SHORT MEMORY.

From the New York Press.

It's just human nature for the ice man to think the coal man is a fool in summer and a genius in winter.

ON THE LEVEL.

From the Arkansas Gazette.

Still, the Panama Canal can be built on the level without being built on the sea level.

JUST A MINUTE FOR VERSE AND HUMOR

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

TO A FLOCK OF GEESE.

Ye wild, free troopers of the skies
That march in wedged ranks the blue
And unmarked roads of Paradise,
Who else but God has tutored you
That wind beset and tempest form
To buffet you with mighty sledge,
Ye still sweep onward through the storm
With that unbroken wedge?

Thrill me again, ye serried host,
With that wild clamor which defies
The strength of whatsoever post
May be to guard the bending skies
From such free rangers as ye are
That dare with swift and rhythmic wings
The night unlighted of a star
To guide God's feathered things.

Ye are the joy of being wild,
The sign and symbol of a state
Of being sweet and undefiled
That breathes its spirit undistrait
Adown the heights to which have soared
Since Eden was our deepest sighs—
Thrill me again, ye feathered horde,
With your wild-ringing cries.

IN CONGRESS.

The clerk of the House had just started to read the new tariff bill.

Mr. Clark arose.

"Mr. Speaker," he asked, "this will be a rather long bill, will it not?"

"Yes," the clerk answered. "It is four inches thick."

"In that event, said Mr. Clark, "I move you that we immediately read the Lord's answer to the prayer for a tariff on zinc and permit Heaven's attitude toward that section of the bill to guide us somewhat in our attitude toward the rest of it."

He Fixed It.

A traveling man died very suddenly in Pittsburg. His relatives telegraphed the undertaker to make a wreath; the ribbon should be extra wide, with the inscription, "Rest in Peace" on both sides, and if there is room, "We Shall Meet in Heaven." The undertaker was out of town, and his new assistant handled the job. It was a startling floral piece which turned up at the funeral. The ribbon was extra wide, and bore the inscription, "Rest in Peace on Both Sides, and if there is Room We Shall Meet in Heaven."—The Ananias Clubman.

ABOUT HUNTING LICENSES.

The new Prendergast game law, which has gone to engrossment, marks our nonresident hunting license up to $25.

Formerly this license has been $15. So far as we know, the State has never collected one. A few nonresidents have been pursued to the boundary line and shot at from this side, but the expectation that the new game law would produce revenue with which to build a new State capitol has proven a dream.

The simple fact is that no hunter has $15—when he goes out. He has just bought a gun, a pair of waders, a water-proof coat, a shell vest, a pair of double-seated trousers, a let-down cap, a duck-call and a dozen decoys. He hasn't any money at all, and you may wager any you have that he isn't going to let anybody catch him and take his new outfit away from him.

Twenty-five dollars is even a bigger joke than 15.

Champ Clark on His District.

It is related by a veracious chronicler that when that masterful man, Thomas Brackett Reed, first went through my district and noted the wonderful harvests white for the reaper, he threw up his hands in astonishment and exclaimed: "Great Heavens, this soil is so rich that if we had it back in New England we would sell it by the peck for seed."

MARCH 4.

Since the launching of Mr. Taft was sullied with foul weather and only a few people were hardy enough to be out on the ways, there is a very general disposition to change the date of our inaugurals to an non-equinoctial period. It is even suggested that this change may be made at the special sessions of Congress convening this week.

We suggest July 4. If we had dedicated all our presidents to the cause of liberty on July 4 we would have more of it. The old uses for July 4 are passing. It will not be many years before nobody will care to shoot off something and then sit around nine days waiting to see if he is going to have lockjaw. But it is a red letter date in our history, and we must find some patriotic use for it. It is a little hot, and the inaugural parades will not be able to march so far, but it can be depended upon to be fair, and there will be no danger to anyone from exposure.

In Missouri.

When asked for his ticket, an elderly passenger on the Shelby County Railroad said "No, I haven't got there yet. I won't give you my ticket until I get there safe and see how I like it." When the train reached Shelbyville the conductor asked the passenger how he liked it. The passenger surrendered his ticket and said: "Oh, it reminds me of riding on the ocean wave. I have ridden on them at fairs." The passenger was J. T. Alexander of Shelbina, 64 years old, and it was his first ride on a train.—Pierce City (Mo.) Leader.

A St. Louisan is to marry a Pittsburg girl worth $7,000,000. Are there any poor people in Pittsburg?

Woman's Economy.

When we contemplate how far a girl may make a few strands of hair go in these times, her wonderful success in making ends meet after she begins to keep house is not surprising.—Charleston News and Courier.

Distance.

"Washington is a city of magnificent distances."

"You bet," said the man who was looking for an office. "I have already come down from a Cabinet position to a janitorship."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

When the American envoy sought an interview with Frederick it was refused, and when that envoy's valise of papers were stolen by the English Ambassador in Germany (Liston) the monarch refused any redress. Frederick permitted the Hessians hired by George III to pass through his kingdom on their way to fight the Americans, and when his French friends protested simply placed enough tax on the emissaries to make a little money.

EXPERIENCES IN THE OIL BUSINESS

By JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

SIXTH ARTICLE.

(From the World's Work, Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.)

ALL these purchases of refineries were conducted with the utmost fairness and good faith on our part, yet in many quarters the stories of certain of these transactions have been told in such form as to give the impression that the sales were made most unwillingly and only because the sellers were forced to make them by the most ruthless exertion of superior power. There was one transaction, viz., the purchase of the property of the Backus Oil Co., which has been variously exploited, and I am made to appear as having personally robbed a defenseless widow of an extremely valuable property, paying her therefor only a mere fraction of its worth. The story as told is one which makes the strongest appeal to the sympathy and, if it were true, would represent a shocking instance of cruelty in crushing a defenseless woman. It is probable that its wide circulation and its acceptance as true by those who know nothing of the facts has awakened more hostility against the Standard Oil Co. and against me personally than any charge which has been made.

This is my reason for entering so much into detail in this particular case, which I am exceedingly reluctant to do, and for many years have refrained from doing.

Mr. F. M. Backus, a highly respected citizen of Cleveland and an old and personal friend of mine, had for several years prior to his death in 1874 been engaged in the lubricating oil business, which was carried on after his death as a corporation known as the Backus Oil Co. In the latter part of 1878, our company purchased certain portions of the property of this company. The negotiations which led to this purchase extended over several weeks, being conducted on behalf of Mrs. Backus, as the principal stockholders, by Mr. Charles H. Marr, and on behalf of our company by Mr. Peter S. Jennings. I personally had nothing to do with the negotiations except that, when the matter first came up, Mrs. Backus requested me to call at her house, which I did, when she spoke of selling the property to our company and requested me to personally conduct the negotiations with her with reference to it. This I was obliged to decline to do, because, as I then explained to her, I was not familiar with the details of the business. In that conversation I advised her not to take any hasty action, and when she expressed fears about the future of the business, stating, for example, that she could not get cars to transport sufficient oil, I said to her that, though we were using our cars and required them in our business, yet we would loan her any number she needed, and do anything else in reason to assist her, and I did not see why she could not successfully prosecute her business in the future as in the past. I told her, however, that if, after reflection, she desired to pursue negotiations for the sale of her property, some of our people, familiar with the lubricating oil business, would take up the question with her. As she still expressed a desire to have our company buy her property, negotiations were taken up by Mr. Jennings, and the only thing that I had to do with the matter was that when our experts reported that in their judgment the value of the works, good will and successorship which we had decided to buy were worth a certain sum, I asked them to add $10,000, in order to make doubly sure that she received full value.

To my profound astonishment, a day or two after the transaction had been closed, I received from her a very unkind letter, complaining that she had been very unjustly treated. After investigating the matter I wrote her the following letter:

> Nov. 13, 1878.
>
> Dear Madame—I have held your note of the 11th inst., received yesterday, until today, as I wished to thoroughly review every point connected with the negotiations for the purchase of the stock of the Backus Oil Co., to satisfy myself as to whether I had unwittingly done anything whereby you could have any right to feel injured. It is true that in the interview I had with you I suggested that if you desired to do so, you could retain an interest in the business of the Backus Oil Co., by keeping some number of its shares, and then [illegible] understood you to say that if you [illegible] you wished to go entirely [illegible] business. That being my under[illegible], our arrangements were made in [illegible] you concluded to make the sale th[illegible] precluded any other interests being represented, and therefore, when you did make the inquiry as to your taking some of the stock, our answer was given in accordance with the facts noted above, but not at all in the spirit in which you refer to the refusal in your note. In regard to the reference that you make as to my permitting the business of the Backus Oil Co. to be taken from you, I say that in this as in all else you have written in your letter of the 11th inst., you do me most grievous wrong. It was of but little moment to the interests represented by me whether the business of the Backus Oil Co. was purchased or not. I believe that it was for your interest to make the sale, and am entirely candid in this statement, and beg to call your attention to the time, some two years ago, when you consulted Mr. Flagler and myself as to selling out your interests to Mr. Rose, at which time you were desirous of selling at considerably less price, and upon time, than you have now received in cash, and which sale you would have been glad to have closed if you could have obtained satisfactory security for the deferred payments. As to the price paid for the property, it is certainly three times greater than the cost at which we could now construct equal or better facilities; and wishing to take a liberal view of it, I urged the proposal of paying $60,000, which was though much too high by some of our parties. I believe that if you would reconsider what you have written in your letter, to which this is a reply, you must admit having done me great injustice, and I am satisfied to await upon your innate sense of right for such admission. However, in view of what seems to be your present feeling, I now offer to restore to you the purchase made by us, you simply returning the amount of money which we have invested, and leaving us as though no purchase has been made.
>
> Should you not desire to accept this proposal, I offer to you 100, 200 or 300 shares of the stock at the same price that we paid for the same, with this addition, that if we keep the property we are under engagement to pay into the treasury of the Backus Oil Co. any amount which added to the amount already paid would make a total of $100,000 and thereby make the shares $100 each.
>
> That you may not be compelled to hastily come to a conclusion, I will leave open for three days these propositions for your acceptance or declination, and in the meantime believe me,
>
> Yours very truly,
>
> JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

NEITHER of these offers was accepted. In order that this may not rest on my unsupported assertion, I submit the following documents: The first is a letter from Mr. H. M. Backus, a brother of Mrs. Backus' deceased husband, who had been associated with the business and had remained with the company after his death. The letter was written without any solicitation whatever on my part, but I have since received permission from Mr. Backus to print it. It is followed by extracts from affidavits made by the gentleman who conducted the negotiations on behalf of Mrs. Backus. I have no wish to reprint the complimentary allusion to myself in Mr. Backus' letter, but have feared to omit a word of it lest some misunderstanding ensue:

> BOWLING GREEN, O., Sept. 18, '03.
>
> Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Cleveland, O.
>
> I do not know whether you will ever receive this letter or not, whether your secretary will throw it into the waste basket or not, but I will do my part and get it off my mind, and it will not be my fault if you do not receive or read it. Ever since the day that my deceased brother's wife, Mrs. F. N. Backus, wrote you the unjust and unreasonable letter in reference to the sale of the property of the Old Backus Oil Co., in which I had a small interest, I have wanted to write you and record my disapproval of that letter. I lived with my brother's family, was at the house the day you called to talk the matter of the then proposed purchase of the property with Mrs. Backus by her request, as she told Mr. Jennings that she wanted to deal through you. I was in favor of the sale from the first.
>
> I was with Mrs. Backus all through the trouble with Mr. Rose and with Mr. Maloney, did what I could to encourage her, and to prevent Mr. Rose from getting the best of her. Mrs. Backus, in my opinion, is an exceptionally good financier, but she does not know and no one can convince her that the best thing that ever happened to her financially was the sale of her interest in the Backus Oil Co. to your people. She does not know that five more years of the then increasing desperate competition would have bankrupted the company and that with the big debt that she was carrying on the lot on Euclid avenue, near Sheriff street, she would have been swamped, and that the only thing that saved her and the oil business generally was the plan of John D. Rockefeller. She thinks that you literally robbed her of millions, and feeds her children on that diet three times a day more or less, principally more, until it has become a mania with her, and no argument that anyone else can suggest will have any effect upon her. She is wise and good in many ways, but on that one subject she is one-sided I think. Of course, if we could have been assured of continued dividends, I would have been opposed to selling the business, but that was out of the question. I know of the $10,000 that was added to the purchase price of the property at your request and I know that you paid three times the value of the property, and I know that all that ever saved our company from ruin was the sale of its property to you, and I simply want to ease my mind by doing justice to you by saying so. After the sale to your company I was simple enough to go to Buffalo and try it again, but soon met with defeat and retired with my flag in the dust. I then went to Duluth, and was on the top wave, till the real-estate bubble broke, and I broke with it. I have had my ups and downs, but I have tried to take my medicine and look pleasant instead of sitting down under a juniper tree and blaming my losses to John D. Rockefeller.
>
> I suppose I would have put off writing this letter for another year or more as I have done so long, had it not been for a little chat that I had with Mr. Hanafin, superintendent of the Buckeye Pipe Line Co., a day or two since, when I was relating the sale, etc., of the B. O. Co.'s business and in that way revived the intention that had lain dormant since the last good resolution in regard to writing it was made. But it's done now, and off my mind.
>
> With much respect and admiration to John D. Rockefeller, I remain,
>
> Yours truly, H. M. BACKUS.

IT appears from the affidavits that the negotiations were conducted on behalf of Mrs. Backus and her company by Mrs. Charles H. Marr, who had been in the employ of the Backus company for some time, and by Mr. Maloney, who was the superintendent of the company from the time of its organization and was also a stockholder; and on behalf of the Standard Oil Co. by Mr. Peter S. Jennings.

There has been an impression that the Standard Oil Co. purchased for $79,000 property which was reasonably worth much more, and that this sacrifice was occasioned by threats and compulsion. Mr. Jennings requested Mr. Marr to submit a written proposition giving the price put by the Backus Co. upon the several items of property and assets which it desired to sell. This statement was furnished and was annexed to Mr. Jenning's affidavit. The Standard Oil Co. finally decided not to purchase all of the assets of the company, but only the oil on hand, for which it paid the full market price, amounting to about $19,000, and the item "works, good-will, and successorship," which were offered by Mr. Marr at $71,000, and for which the Standard offered $60,000.

Mr. Maloney made an affidavit that he was superintendent of the Backus Oil Co. from the time of its organization, and also a stockholder in the company, and had been associated in business with Mr. Backus for many years previous to his death; that he took part in the negotiations for the sale, representing Mrs. Backus in the matter. After speaking of the negotiations, he says:

> Finally, after consultation, the proposition was made by her to dispose of the works, good will and successorship for $71,000. A few days after the proposal was made to her to pay the sum of $60,000 for works and good will, and to take the oil on hand at its market price, which proposition she accepted, and the sale was concluded.
>
> During these negotiations Mrs. Backus was anxious to sell, and was entirely satisfied with the sale after it was concluded. I know of the fact that about a year and a half previous she had offered to sell out the stock of the Backus Oil Co. at from 30 to 33 per cent less than she received in the sale referred to, and the value of the works and property sold had not increased in the meantime. I was well acquainted with the works of the Backus Oil Co. and their value. I could at the time of the sale have built the works new for $25,000. There were no threats nor intimidations, nor anything of the kind used to force the sale. The negotiations were pleasant and fair, and the price paid in excess of the value, and satisfactory to Mrs. Backus and all concerned for her.

So far as I can see, after more than 30 years have elapsed, there was nothing but the most kindly and considerate treatment of Mrs. Backus on the part of the Standard Oil Co. I regret that Mrs. Backus did not take at least part of her pay in Standard certificates, as we suggested she should do.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Jack Bookfield, a Louisville (Ky.) gambler, gives a supper at his rooms. His guests are his sister, Mrs. Campbell; his niece, Viola; his former sweetheart, Mrs. Whipple, and her son Clay (who loves Viola) and Frank Hardmuth, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney. Hardmuth proposes to Viola and is snubbed. Bookfield becomes aware of a subtle power he possesses whereby he can influence the gaze of others. He sees and is strangely interested in Justice Prentice, who explains to him this power. Denning, a rich spendthrift, comes to the house for a game of poker. Clay, finding himself alone with Viola, proposes and is accepted. Jack renews his old-time suit for Mrs. Whipple's hand. As he refuses to give up gambling, she rejects him. Clay, tormented by Denning, strikes the latter dead with a heavy paper knife. On trial Clay found guilty. Clay's mother appeals to Justice Prentice, who loved her mother and fought a duel in his youth because another man annoyed Clay's grandmother with a catseye.

Chapter XI (Continued.)

"NO," said Helen, evidently anxious to distract his attention from the book. "Try to think."

"Was it a snake or a toad?" the Justice pondered.

"No—a jewel."

"A jewel?" I remember now—cat's-eye—a cat's-eye jewel, wasn't it?"

"Yes, yes, yes." Helen covered her eyes with her handkerchief and bowed her head upon the table.

Justice Prentice was at a loss to understand the cause of her sudden tears. Had he inadvertently touched some ancient wound?

"My dear madame, it seems to be a very emotional subject with you," he said, tentatively.

"It is." Helen raised her wet eyes to his face. "I've hoped so you would remember it. On the car I was praying all the way that you would remember it, and you do—you do." Helen leaned over the table pleading, eager, straining for his answer.

"I do—yes," he assured her. "It is evidently something in which I can aid you," Prentice said, gently.

"It is. And you will?"

"There is nothing I would not do for a daughter of Margaret Price. You are in mourning, dear lady; is it for"——

"For my son."

The Justice turned apologetically to Jack, as if he would spare her.

"How long has he been dead?"

"He is not dead, Justice Prentice!" Helen cried, her voice rising with emotion. "My boy, the grandson of Margaret Price, is under sentence of death." She rose from her chair.

"Sentence of death!" In a moment Justice Prentice had recovered the judicial mantel of his office and was on guard.

"Yes; I am the mother of Clay Whipple"——

"But, madame"——

"He is to die. I come"——

"Stop!" Prentice commanded, sternly. "You forget yourself." He retreated with great gravity toward the door of his private apartment. "The case of Whipple is before the Supreme Court of the United States. I am a member of that body—I cannot listen to you."

"You must." Helen followed him.

"You are prejudicing his chances." Prentice went on, imperatively rather than in explanation; "you are making it necessary for me to rule against him." And then in a tone of more human appeal: "My dear madame, for the sake of your boy, do not do this. It is unlawful—without dignity or precedent." He turned upon Brookfield, whom he evidently held responsible for this painful interview. "If the lady were not the mother of the boy, I should call your conduct base."

"But she is his mother," Viola interjected.

"And, Justice Prentice, I am the daughter of the woman you loved," Helen said.

"I beg you to be silent." The Justice put his hand on the doorknob.

"Won't you hear us for a moment?" Jack temporized, feeling that the opportunity they had counted on so much was slipping from them.

"I cannot—I dare not. I must leave you."

"Why?" The question came from Viola.

"I have explained," the Justice hurried on, in his indignation; "the matter is before the Court—for me to hear you would be corrupt."

"I won't talk of the question before your Court." Helen's intuition seized the one possible plea for a hearing. "That, our attorney tells us, is a constitutional point."

"That is its attitude."

"I will not talk of that. I wish to speak of this letter."

"You can listen to that, can't you, Mr. Justice?" Jack pleaded.

Prentice paused and surveyed his visitors: Brookfield, manly, straightforward, sincere; Viola, tremblingly expectant and suppliant; Helen, in an anguish of suspense, her frightened face so wonderfully like one he remembered.

"Do you hope for its influence indirectly?" he asked, coming back into the room.

"No. Sit down, Justice Prentice, and listen to me. I will talk calmly to you." Helen resumed her place at the table; Viola joined her, standing with her arms about her—the two women making a picture that moved the old Justice more than he would have cared to confess.

"My dear madame," he said, "my heart bleeds for you." Then, to Brookfield: "Her agony must be past judicial measurement."

"God only knows, sir."

There was a moment's silence before Helen again turned to the Justice.

"You remember this letter, Mr. Justice—you have recalled the duel?"

Prentice bowed.

"You remember, thank God, its cause."

"I do."

"Do you know that my mother's aversion to that jewel amounted almost to insanity?"

"I remember that."

"I inherited that aversion. As a child the sight of one of them would throw me almost into convulsions."

"Is it possible?"

"It is true. The physicans said I would outgrow the susceptibility, and in a measure I did. But I discovered that Clay had inherited the fatal fear from me."

"You can understand that, Mr. Justice," Brookfield declared anxiously.

"Medical jurisprudence is full of such cases. Why should we deny them? Is nature faithful only in physical matters? You are like this portrait. Your voice is that of Margaret Price. Nature's behest should have embraced also some of the less apparent possessions, I think."

"We urged all that at the trial," Jack submitted, "but they called it invention."

"Nothing seems more probable to me."

"Thank you," Helen said, in deepest gratitude, hard put to it to restrain her tears of relief. "Well, as I was saying, Clay, my boy, had that dreadful and unreasonable fear of the jewel. I protected him as far as possible. But one night a year ago some men, companions, finding that the hight of this stone annoyed him, pressed it upon his attention. He didn't know, Mr. Justice, he was not responsible." Helen's fingers locked and unlocked in her agony. "It was insanity; but he struck his tormentor, and the blow resulted in the young man's death." Unconsciously she rose and extended her hands in dramatic appeal to the Justice.

"Terrible—terrible!" he whispered, painfully attentive.

"My poor boy is crushed by the awful deed. He is not a murderer—he was never that—but they have sentenced him, Mr. Justice; he is to die." Helen's rising tone ended in one heart-broken sob. She staggered toward the Justice, who had himself risen from his chair, drawn by an involuntary impulse to her aid, but Brookfield was before him and took her in his arms.

"Helen, dear — Helen" — Brookfield sought to comfort her—"remember how much depends on you—try to compose yourself."

"You promised," Viola reminded her.

Helen became conscious of the voice of Justice Prentice speaking in judicial tones to Jack, and of Jack's rejoinders.

"All this was ably presented to the trial court, you say?"

"By the best attorneys."

"And the verdict?"

"Still was guilty. But, Mr. Justice, the sentiment of the community has changed very much since then. We feel that a new trial would result differently."

The mention of a new trial reminded Helen of her own part—she heard her own voice speaking to the Justice.

"When our lawyers decided to go to the Supreme Court, I remembered some letter of yours in this old book. Can you imagine my joy when I found the letter was on the very point of this inherited trait on which we rested our defense?"

"We have ridden 24 hours to reach you," Jack said. "The train came in only at 10 o'clock."

"Oh, Mr. Justice, you are not powerless to help me!" Helen was alive with new hope and joy—the man into whose deep eyes she looked was responding to her appeal. "What is an official duty to a mother's love, to the life of my boy?"

"My dear, dear madame, that is not necessary, believe me. This letter comes very properly under the head of new evidence." In the most matter-of-fact manner of which he was at the moment capable, Prentice turned to Brookfield.

"The defendant is entitled to a rehearing on that."

"Mr. Justice—Mr. Justice!" Helen exclaimed, almost beside herself with joy.

"There—there." Again Viola's arms were about her.

"Of course that isn't before us," Prentice explained, "but when we remand the case on this constitutional point"——

"Then you will—you will remand it!" cried Helen.

Justice Henderson had convinced me on that point tonight, so I think there is no doubt of the decision."

"You can never know the light you let into my heart."

Viola returned to her the handkerchief which had marked the page in the autograph book. Helen closed the book, with the handkerchief in its place.

"What is that perfume?" Prentice asked, as she did so. "Have you one about you?"

"Yes, on this handkerchief."

"What is it?"

"Mignonette."

"Mignonette?"

"A favorite perfume of my mother's. This handkerchief of hers was in the book with the letter."

"Indeed!" Prentice inhaled slowly. His eyes were moist, and in them there was a haunted look of tender memory.

Save This Recipe—It Makes an Excellent Cough Remedy

By making up some of the remedy described below and having it in the house ready for use you can quickly nip a cold or cough in the bud and avoid most of the usual annoyance and possible suffering. At any rate, the recipe is worth saving, so that when a cough or cold enters your home you will know how to conquer it quickly. Although very simple and inexpensive, this homemade remedy is really superior to any ready-made cough syrup you can buy. Use:

Granulated Sugar Syrup......13½ oz.
Pinex.............................2½ oz.

Put the Pinex in a pint bottle and fill up the bottle with Granulated Sugar Syrup, made as follows: To one pint of Granulated Sugar add one-half cup of water, stir and let boil just a moment. Shake the mixture well and take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours, as required.

Taken when the first symptoms appear, this simple remedy will drive away a cough or cold almost immediately. Even deep-seated, obstinate coughs usually yield to it inside of twenty-four hours. It is also excellent for incipient consumption, bronchial whooping coughs, hoarseness and similar ailments. Is equally good for adults and children. The taste is very pleasant.

This prescription is effective for the same reason that the air of the pine forests is so effective in the cure of tuberculosis and other membrane diseases. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other healing elements of the pine. The Granulated Sugar Syrup is an excellent sedative.

In making this remedy do not expect good results by using any of the weaker pine oil or pine tar preparations. Use the full strength Pinex. If your druggist does not have it he will be glad to get it for you if you ask him to do so.

The Granulated Sugar costs about four cents and the Pinex about fifty cents. So the cost is only about fifty-four cents for a whole pint—enough to last a family for a long time. If kept well corked it will never [illegible]

DON'T TAKE "ANY" SOAP

"Watch the Results."

Drug-Store Cases are full of Soaps. The chief difference between them is the wrappers. The Druggist can't discriminate—doesn't pretend to—he knows that most Soaps are merely soap.

It is to your interest to ask for and to get it.

Resinol is not like other Soaps. It is the most valuable and helpful Soap ever enclosed in a wrapper. It is the only Soap that feeds and nourishes the skin as well as cleanses it. It is the only Soap that contains RESINOL—the most healing and soothing skin emolient known to medical skill.

RESINOL SOAP is at once a cleansing Soap, a healing Soap, a nourishing Soap. No other Soap can take the place of it. No other Soap can begin to benefit your skin as RESINOL SOAP can.

Resinol Shaving Stick is the "creme de luxe" of shaving soaps. The Resinol in it soothes and heals the skin, making the use of lotions after shaving unnecessary.

HOW TO SPEND FIVE THOUSAND A DAY.

Letters From Readers of the Post-Dispatch in Competition for Prizes Tell How They Would Dispose of Mrs. Green's Income.

Charity and Self.

Prize Editor, Post-Dispatch.

Five thousand dollars a day, $35,000 a week, $1,825,000 a year. What would I do with that income?

An itemized statement will tell the story more quickly than it can be told in any other way.

Item	per year	per day
Humanity	$ 820,000	$2246 60
Clothing	320,000	876 40
Living	500,000	1370 00
Travel	185,000	507 00
Total	$1,825,000	$5000 00

The item "humanity" includes any and all expenditures for the benefit of my fellow man. "Clothing" covers both necessary wearing apparel and that purchased through inordinate (?) vanity, for personal use. "Living" not only takes into account the usual home expenses, but also the exorbitant charges made by first-class hotels to persons "on the go." Tips are also included in this item. The item "travel" includes traveling expenses only.

I have not thought it worth while to consider the reinvestment of a part of the income as I have taken it for granted that the Post-Dispatch wishes its "heirs" to be full-fledged spendthrifts. A thrifty man like J. P. Morgan, our own John D. or Andrew J. would—but then, what's the use.

Criminals and Unemployed.

Prize Editor, Post-Dispatch.

The possession of this sum is to me an inconceivable possibility; but, had I it, my philanthropy would seek new and unworn channels.

After having made suitable provision for my family, I would turn my attention to the criminal classes; and, in the belief that crime results solely from evil association, would remove to wholesome surroundings the infant victims of circumstances—evil example, foul habitations and insufficient nourishment. I would build a home for that class of convicted criminal which, genuinely anxious to reform, is, time and again, hounded back to crime by our present system of police espionage. To such I would offer uplifting surroundings and, above all, the consciousness that he is not eternally branded. Having placed him beyond the possibility of immediate want, I would call upon broad-minded employers to give him a chance. There is another class more deserving of assistance than any—the office employe out of work. Ill paid at the best, and too proud to seek charity when occasion arises, he suffers unutterable pangs of humiliation as well as of want. For them I would build an institution on similar lines and establish an efficient employment bureau.

Employ Men Out of Work.

Prize Editor, Post-Dispatch.

I would install factories in each State and possession of the United States ranging in price from $100,000 to $300,000 each, which would be a combination pottery and glass works, manufacturing grave vaults, fence posts, bathtubs, sewer pipe, tile brick—common, enameled, fire and paving—in fact any article composed of clay, vaults of glass, and bury our dead decently, humanely and strictly sanitary at less cost than our funerals now, and use a pine box to inclose casket or coffin and my guarantee is that the vault will decay just after the earth decays and no sooner. Also would employ every man out of employment in the United States 24 hours per day 365¼ days per year.

A Home for Cripples.

Prize Editor Post-Dispatch.

If I was to find myself with an income of $5000 a day, the first thing I'd do would be to build mamma a nice concrete house on our farm, so that I could live with her and not have to board here while she works somewhere else, then I would buy her some good horses and other stock, and we would make our home the most beautiful place and have every thing nice. Then I would build, on the hill which overlooks the beautiful valley, a home for little orphan cripples, that would cost $25,000, and a large amount annually for running expenses. Then I would lay out a little town in the valley and have all the up-to-date improvements therein, with a good school, high school, churches, hospital and market. My people would be farmers and stockmen. We need a railroad in this part of the country, so I would build an electric line to St. Louis, this would cost about $3000 a mile, but it would bring the people from the hot, overcrowded city in summer time to where they could live and be happy for a day. I would use my money to help teach all boys and girls to be good, useful citizens.

GRAHAM'S ARM IN BEST SHAPE FOR CAMPAIGN

McAleer Will Lean Heavily on This Pitcher in Early Championship Games.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 15.

MANAGER McALEER has shoved the speed lever of the Browns' baseball machine another notch forward. Beginning today, the athletes who contemplate making St. Louis famous this summer will be pushed to the limit of endurance. The Southern sun has broken through the clouds again and is driving away the chilly Northern breeze so that the veteran ballplayers of the St. Louis club may quicken their pace without danger.

Against the lively little Houston club yesterday afternoon, on a sloppy field, the Brownies played baseball for the first time since the day they put Cleveland out of the pennant race last October. The air was chilly, but the sun was out and it inspired the fellows with a bit of fire that had been lacking for three or four days. They thrashed the local team quite easily, 9 to 4, and the pitchers were not required to get up speed to do it. Good clean hitting won the game and a strong defense broke up the attack of the minor leaguers.

Bill Graham twirled the first three innings most admirably. He didn't permit a score, and used considerable speed all the time, with an occasional bender over the plate, but never once letting out at top speed. He showed enough in those three innings, however, to assure Manager McAleer that he will be fit for a lot of the early work in the coming pennant race.

Justus Not Fit.

Bill was followed by young Walter Justus. The latter was in no condition to take exercise, but he was too game a boy to let on to his boss that anything was wrong. Justus had taken quite a severe cold and at the time had a fever. After he had pitched an inning and allowed the home team to count three runs, McAleer learned his physical condition and had him bundle up in extra sweaters and go back to his room for treatment.

Bill Bailey flung the next two innings and held the minors down nicely, but was forced to curve the ball in one or two instances to get out of the hole.

Rube Waddell had been advertised as [illegible]e of the pitchers so McAleer put his [illegible]ar southpaw on the slab for the [illegible]hree innings and Rube lobbed the [illegible]ver like a child, never once throwing [illegible] hard enough to muss a custard pie. The result was that he was tapped for three or four hits and with the bases full, forced over one more run, but he kept the crowd in good humor with his antics in the box and every one knew he was playing horse instead of trying to strike them out, as he does when the real season is on. The swatting of Hartzell, Stone, Jones, Ferris and Hoffman won the game. Every one of these players has his eye on the ball and the young minor league twirlers were throwing their best brand of curves and shoots, too.

Hartzell and Stone seem to have struck their best batting gait already, the former more especially, for he is lining the ball out with a fierceness not excelled at any time last season. One of his drives tore up the grass between left and center field and banged against the clubhouse for three bags.

Schweitzer Under Restraint.

Al Schweitzer, the popular little outfielder who was a sensation for a time last summer, has not atempted to let out yet. McAleer keeps a tight rein on him every day, because he fears another breakdown of that leg that kept him out of the game part of 1908. So far the leg has showed no signs of weakness, but the Browns boss will not allow the boy to put it to the test, preferring to have him work up to his speed gradually. He is not even permitted to run out a hit at full speed, and in the game of Thursday was given a calling by McAleer because he scored from first base when Jones hit a three bagger to right field. Manager Jeems was coaching on third at the time and ran in the diamond after Al had rounded second, grabbed hold of him and made him go the rest of the way in on the trot. It happened that a muff of the relay throw prevented his being thrown out.

Waddell Has Devised a Plan to Offset Cobb and Rossmann

Waddell has a new one to add to his repertoire of curves and shoots this summer. He calls it the head ball and it is to be used only against left-handed hitters. The principal of it is to throw the first ball straight at the batter's head. He experimented with it last fall on Cobb and Rossman of the Detroit Club and prevented them from getting what is known with the players as the toe hold in batting. It simply puts the batter off his stride and some of the fans will remember its effect against the slugging Detroiters.

Joe Quirk, the trainer of the team, entered a roller skating race here Saturday night. It was for two miles and there were 14 in it. Joe was leading well when less than a mile had been covered, but a small boy on whom he had gained a lap, fell in front of him. There was a flop on the floor and one of the spectators prevented Trainer Joe from scooting through an open window with his feet in the air.

Wilbur Smith caught the full nine innings yesterday and is about the quickest man behind the bat ever seen in the big league. He threw out two runners at second, each by ten feet, and not another one tried to steal on him.

Bob Wallace is out for work every day, but will not take active part in the games for a few days yet. He catches fly balls in the outfield and works out with the pitchers. There is not a thing wrong with him and he doesn't intend there shall be either.

When Williams failed to report Sunday, Manager McAleer concluded he must feel the need of more treatment at Hot Springs. A report was out that Jimmy had fallen in some way and injured his side. McAleer intends to wire him today if he doesn't arrive in the camp.

JACK JOHNSON IS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO March 15.—Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, arrived in Chicago this morning from Vancouver shortly after 8 o'clock. The arrival of the black champion was made the occasion for a mighty demonstration by the residents of Chicago's black belt, who were at the train in force to greet the hero of their race.

Johnson was not accompanied by his white wife, who was formerly Nellie O'Brien of Philadelphia. He will remain in this city for a few days before starting for Galveston, Tex., his former home. From Galveston he will go direct to New York and then to London.

TOMMY O'TOOLE GETS THREE EXCELLENT BOUTS

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—John McGuigan, manager of the National A. C., has signed Tommy O'Toole, the [illegible]ver local bantamweight, for three [illegible]uts with the guarantee of $2750. [illegible]'Toole will first meet Joe Bowker, champion bantamweight of England, at [illegible]ational Club next Saturday night. He next takes on Abe Attell and then Ad Wolgast, who is on his way here from Los Angeles. The dates of the last bouts have not yet been fixed.

Roessler Is High Gun.

William Roessler, with two scores of 222 out of a possible 250, did the best work in the St. Louis Central Sharp Shooters' competition yesterday. Tobias Watkins made the best score for 10 consecutive shots when he got a total of 233 out of a possible 250.

St. Louis Bowlers Roll High Scores in A. B. C. Events

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 15.—St. Louis bowlers had another inning today when several two-men teams rolled scores of good size. One pair, Dean and Turner, with 1259, bowled the second high score of the entire tournament in this class. Turner of St. Joseph, Mo., who bowled with the De Soto Stars, and Dean of Granite City, Ill., who bowled with the Hyde Parks, did sensational work in the doubles today, getting second place in the tournament, with a score of 1259, 50 pins better than the next team to them.

Turner got 9 strikes and 2 spares in the first game, scoring 267—high single-game score of the tournament. He came back with 210 and finished with 160, total 637. Dean got 188, 198, and made a grand finish, getting 236; total, 622.

J. E. Ameling and C. Freuman of the Witter-Christen Club scored 1179, and are tied for twelfth place.

Roberts of the Duffys and Waldecker of the Old Lynch Ryes was next to land in the money. They totaled 1101. Rothwell and Helbert of the Nadjas also got in the money, with 1090. The others failed to get in the money. Jellison and Sanders bowl off for the A. B. C. gold medal late this afternoon.

Three ladies' teams from St. Louis rolled in the first double event today. The scores follow:

Miss Kuhl-Miss Warner, St. Louis, 931.

Miss Wilson-Miss Metzel, St. Louis, 909.

Mrs. Cowiger-Miss Kister, St. Louis, 861.

Martin, with a record of five games won and none lost, is leading in the handicap pool tournament at Peach's. Hughes, Arnold and Dirhold are tied for the lead in the three-cushion billiard tournament with three games won and none lost each.

$10,000 Motor Boats to Race for Title Here

All arrangements have been completed for the Minnie C. III, owned by E. Corsepius of Fort Madison, Io., and the Independence II, owned by Edwin C. Koenig of this city, two of the fastest motor boats in the world, to meet in a match race at St. Charles, Mo. on Oct. 11 in a race open to the world, the prize for which will be a $1000 purse. The race will be the feature event of the centennial celebration at St. Charles.

William J. Tobin, manager of the St. Charles celebration, has returned from Fort Madison. He now has the signed contracts of both Koenig and Corseipus to race against any or all boats of the first class that wish to enter the race. Koenig and Corseipus will be the guests of honor at a banquet given by the St. Charles Boat Association in that city on March 25.

Unfortunately for St. Charles, it seems that the Minnie C. and Independence will have already met twice before their contest at St. Charles. St. Charles men are satisfied, however, as the boats are well matched and either might be remodeled so as to change the result of previous races.

Independence's Other Dates.

The Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association will hold its annual regatta at Davenport, Io. on July 4. Koenig expects to compete at Davenport. Koenig has received a special invitation to compete in an open-to-the-world race for a silver cup valued at $250 and a purse of $500, to be the feature event of the regatta to be held at Peoria, Ill., on Aug. 17 and 18. Thomas H. Webb, president of the Peoria Motor Boat Association, also states in his letter that there will be a number of other events. The Fort Madison men are sure to send the Minnie C. after Koenig's boat on every occasion they can. It is probable that the flyers will also meet in a race at the annual regatta of the St. Louis Power Boat Association.

The Minnie C III will be a brand-new boat, with six cylinders working on the two-cycle principle. The boat should develop close to 100-horsepower.

The Independence II will practically be a new boat. The hull will be new and will be high out of the water. Eight new cylinders have been cast especially for the engine and they will be even larger than last year. The hull and engine will, however, both be lighter. Factory experts have been working on the engine for some time. Last year the Independence made over 33 miles an hour. It is safe to say that the boat that beats the Independence III this year, if she does not go to the bottom, will have to go at least 35 miles an hour. The engine had 210-horsepower last year. It should develop 225-horsepower this year.

In the meanwhile Hugo Lippert is having built for him a new Missouri II which may spring a surprise on a few local men. What the new 500-horsepower eight-cylinder two-cycle craft that is now practically completed at a local boat building works is going to do is a question. It is certain that next year the champion speedboat of the Mississippi will be in a class with any boat in the world. The Independence of last year cost considerably over $10,000, so that the game is an expensive one.

WILLIAMS OFF TO JOIN THE BROWNS AT HOUSTON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 15.—Jimmy Williams, second baseman of the Browns, left here last night with Frank Chance and the Chicago Cubs to make connection at Benton, Ark., on his way to Houston, Tex., to join McAleer. From all appearances Jimmy looked to be in the pink of condition, and said before leaving that the springs did him a world of good.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 15.—The international chess masters' tournament, which has been in progress here since Feb. 15, came to an end yesterday, when the three remaining games, which were unfinished in previous rounds, were decided. They resulted as follows: Salwe beat Cohn, Chotimirski lost to Berlin and Teachmann beat Speyer. As previously announced, Dr. Lasker and A. Rubinstein divided first and second prizes, while Duras and Spielman divided third and fourth.

YALE MAN MAY COACH ST. L. U.

Among other well-known Eastern and Western football men whom Dr. D. C. Todd, secretary of the St. Louis University Athletic Board has written to in an effort to secure a first-class football coach for St. Louis U. was Tad Jones, former quarterback on the Yale eleven. Dr. Todd, in his letter, asked Jones if he would accept the position of coach of the St. Louis U. team. As yet no reply has been received.

Hayes and Dorando to Meet.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Little Johnny Hayes, the winner of the Olympic Marathon and the conqueror of Dorando, the Italian, in that historic race, will try to square accounts at the Madison Square Garden tonight with the son of sunny Italy for his defeat in the race on Thanksgiving eve.

As a result of the opinions of experts that Hayes is fitter and faster than he was, the odds on Hayes. Had the contest been up for decision six weeks ago, Dorando in all probability would have been the favorite.

Packey M'Farland Flees a Myth When He Dodges Bout With Old Master Gans

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

NEW YORK, March 15.

JOE GANS showed the other night at the National A. C. that he has joined the has-been class. Although there isn't a doubt on earth that he framed and allowed White to stay the 10 rounds, poor old Joe was leg and arm weary himself when the finish came.

I have received many letters asking whether or not bets should be paid on the fight. In my judgment, decidedly not. In the first place, it was crooked. White was actually knocked out, and when the referee had counted up to "nine" the gong was rung to prevent the count from being finished. That round was only 2m. and 30s. long. Had not the bell been rung, White would have been out and wagers would have been decided on that basis. After that slip of the fist Gans was careful not to repeat and take a chance of spoiling the program.

Aside from this, Joe showed by his general action that "age has grabbed him" at last. If the Gans we saw was the Gans that Battling Nelson knocked out in 21 rounds at Colma, I don't imagine Nelson was entitled to much consideration. Any fair lightweight could have duplicated the feat.

I can't keep back a smile when I think of the care with which Packey McFarland has avoided Gans, refused all challenges and waited for a chance with Nelson. Nelson told Packey to "go beat Gans first," and Packey thought Gans too tough to monkey with.

At that, Gans got away for a couple of months and came back again rejuvenated. He's pulled off a few of these spectacular stunts before. I remember seeing Gans work the "all-in" dodge half a dozen years ago and get away with it, too. Still, this time it looks genuine.

Nelson had better get into the ring again before long. If he doesn't, he may find that "age has grabbed him," too.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

OXYGEN as a means of reviving the wilting fighter, is just now being decorated with a few encomiums by Bobby Wilson of Utica and Johnny Marto of New York. Bobby and Johnny protest that it was merely oxygen which enabled Young Corbett to come back round after round like a new man in his recent fights with them. Both assert that but for oxygen Young Corbett would have suffered the knockout ordeal.

As a compliment to the effects of oxygen, this is all right; but as a memorial against its use by fighters it is rather late. The employment of oxygen is no novelty. James J. Corbett, among others, used it as far back as 1903, when it enabled him to endure the sledging punishment of James J. Jeffries for ten rounds before the inevitable came.

The time for the complaint against artificial aids in fighting was then when its prospective use was just dawning. As a matter of fact, it is no more to be deplored in the prize ring as unsportsmanlike than is the ammonia bottle, collodion or other accessories which enable a harassed pug to quickly recover from punishment.

To the Uttermost Gasp.

THE evil in the use of oxygen lies in the fact that it enables the fighter to get the last ounce of energy out of his system in an extreme test, thereby leaving him utterly exhausted and a prey to afflictions of the heart. It enables the human frame when pressed to its utmost of endurance to endure yet a little farther; and that means the breaking strain. It is the employment of this and other means of stimulation in Marathon races that causes some of the worst evils of that sport and results in the collapses that frequently occur. When the human frame cries out "Quit!" to the runner, the fighter, the wrestler or what not, it is indeed time to stop. It knows its limitations better than even its possessor.

In the final of the St. Louis soccer season Peltier rapped Peterson on the side lines and the latter retaliated in the dressing room. There were no serious casualties.

Those False Favorites.

ONE of the great mysteries of the world is that of the making of "favorites" for purposes of sport speculation. This morning we read that Hayes is the betting choice to beat Dorando in a Marathon event tonight. In view of the fact that Dorando once gave Hayes an unquestioned beating, and further that Hayes has done little since then to put him on the top notch level, it is hard to see the reason for such a palpable offense against "past performance."

One can understand false favorites in racing, where fields are numerous; but in boxing and two-man events, unless the contestants be equal on previous performance, it seems no difficult task to name a big percentage of winners in advance of the show.

But San Francisco, for example, is notoriously wrong on its fight favorites, many strong choices having been bowled over there in recent years.

Perhaps, after all, there is a little sentiment left in betting that makes us back our national candidates, our favorite boxers and athletes, despite the known superior ability of the opposition. At least it is better to take this view than the alternative.

Tenpin Game Survivors.

THE fact that St. Louis is high in the performance and the political sides of the American Bowling Congress still in sesion at Pittsburg, recalls that this city has witnessed one of the most remarkable transformations the bowling world has ever known. Three or four years ago tenpin alleys in St. Louis were scarce. Cocked hat, the three-pin game, was all over the city. This was the most important cocked-hat city in the country, and leagues were numbered by scores. In three years, presto! We jump from supremacy in cocked hat to leadership in tenpins. Today St. Louis has a greater number of association teams than Chicago, New York of any other big city of the country that is a member of the American Bowling Congress. Cocked hat still survives, but it no longer excites the extreme interest of other days.

From Bad to Better.

DIFFICULTIES embarrass the efforts of the Western Rowing Club to regain its former place on the map of aquatics. Having inadequate quarters the club built a $40,000 new boathouse. Lacking proper instruction, the club hired a former champion oarsman of the world, Fred Plaisted, to teach its rising youth. Having inadequate shells, the club sent to a celebrated boatmaker in Cambridge, Mass., for new ones. After this perhaps fate will let them take advantage of a near spring day to get a first workout.

Getting boats from Cambridge, however, is no such punny thing as it would seem. The shells average about $400 per boat and it costs $20 each to ship them. They are too long to fit in any ordinary car and are therefore sent by express.

Brinkley Survivors to Get Cardinal Receipts

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 15.

YESTERDAY was a day of rest for the Cardinals, who enjoyed it to the utmost after their hard week's work. A number of the players went to church this morning and spent the afternoon lounging about the hotel lobby or taking walks about the city. Steve Evans organized a party of climbers, who went on a trip to Pulaski Heights, a fashionable suburb of the city that is built upon one of the foothills of the Ozarks to the westward of the city.

Today's game between the regulars and the Bresnahans at Faucette Park, in Argenta, will be a society event in the town across the river. The entire proceeds are to go to the survivors of the Brinkley disaster. About 1300 tickets have already been sold and the society women of Argenta, who have the affair in charge, are confident of realizing $1000 on the affair.

Although the atmosphere was chilly yesterday, the sky was cloudless and the prospects are for a week of warm weather. The players are all hopeful, as a week of hard work under a broiling sun would put them in splendid condition for the exhibition games which begin next week. The pitchers have suffered the most from the continued damp and chilly weather, and Higginbotham is the only veteran who has ventured to cut loose so far, although several of the youngsters have been curving them over. The Cardinals will no longer have the entire use of the local ball yard as nine of Mike Finn's battery players are expected in from Cincinnati tomorrow afternoon. They will work all week and will be joined by the main body of the Little Rock players next Monday.

Six pitchers and catchers of the St. Paul of the American Association team will also work out at the Little Rock park this week. The other St. Paul players will arrive a week later and will train at the Argenta (Arkansas State League) park across the river.

On Friday, March 6, there will be nearly 150 players in Little Rock. On that date the Chicago Cubs will play an exhibition game here with the Little Rock team, the Cardinals will still be here, as will St. Paul and the Argenta team of the State league, five in all, representing four different classes of organized baseball.

MOTOR NEWS AND GOSSIP

By NELSON T. GUTELIUS.

One of the "little things" that will greatly prolong the life of an automobile tire is proper attention to surface cuts in the tread, even though small and apparently of little consequence at the time. If these are neglected, dirt and water will soon work into the cuts, which, of course, are made larger by constant wear, and eventually the rubber is affected, and the fabric decays from the moisture that comes in contact with it. A preparation known as Michelin Mastic is made by one of the large tire manufacturers, for repairing cover cuts quickly and permanently.

F. A. Seiberling, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, O., has brought suit against the Standard Universal Rim Co. of Columbus, O., in the United States Circuit Court, Eastern Division of the Southern District of Ohio, for infringement of patents covering the Goodyear quick detachable rim, so well known to automobilists, drivers and owners.

Books Order for 1914 Model.

It is not unusual for a motorist to place an order for a new car several months, or even a year ahead of the date named for delivery, but perhaps Carl H. Page, dealer for the Chalmers-Detroit cars in New York City, is the only man ever to book an order five years in advance of delivery. The story of this unusual order is told in the following letter:

"Chalmers-Detroit Company, Dear Sir—You have sent me a catalogue of the Chalmers-Detroit, and I like the Chalmers "30" the best. I am a boy 12 years old, and papa said that I could get it when I am 17 years old; that is five years from now. I like the 1909 model now, but the 1914 model will be improved, I know. I was at your salesroom Friday. I think you saw me. Yours truly, Farmers at Kansas City Show.

Farmers were the predominating buyers of motor cars at the Kansas City automobile show, which closed Saturday night. All the dealers to whom the question was put agreed that country trade is increasing out of proportion to city trade. "And when we get real good country roads," was a frequent comment, "the motor car will be as necessary to the farmer as a horse."

Lewis H. Knoche came from Martin City, intending to spend $1200 on a car. When he had looked around and seen what value he could get for his money he decided against the cheaper cars and bought one for $4675. He said it was an investment.

S.S.S. RIDS THE SYSTEM OF CATARRH

Catarrh is a blood disease which causes a general inflammation of the inner linings or mucous membranes of the body. The diseasing of these delicate surfaces and tissues produces all the well known symptoms of the trouble, such as ringing noises in the head and ears, tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, pains above the eyes, irritation of the throat, sometimes slight fever, and a general feeling of weakness and ill health. Even the lungs become affected by the continual passage of impure blood through them, and there is danger of consumption if the disease is allowed to remain in the system. S. S. S. cures Catarrh because it purifies the blood. It goes into the circulation and removes every particle of the catarrhal matter, making this vital fluid pure, rich and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and health restored. S. S. S. rids the system of catarrh by attacking the trouble at its head and entirely removing the cause from the blood, thus making a permanent and lasting cure. S. S. S. is made entirely from health-giving roots, herbs and barks, and for this reason is an especially safe and desirable medicine. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write.

EASTER SENTIMENT IN SPRING OPENING AT PENNY & GENTLES'

Store Decorated With Garlands and Strands of Smilax and Early Blossoms.

The first spring opening of Penny & Gentles in their new store at Broadway and Morgan street, began Monday morning. There was a touch of Easter sentiment in the garlands and strands of smilax and the sprays of early blossoms with which the store was decorated throughout.

There was a touch of spring, too, in the millinery and women's suit dress goods departments, where the gay new colors that are to be worn this spring were more delicate and fascinating than the colorings of the blossoms themselves.

In the suit department are the suits of newest cut and color, in the wistaria and new Dutch blue shades, and the different shades of reseda green and peacock blue. There is shown a great variety of the new step suits with the new Persian trimmings and white and black stripe suits.

The new millinery department is of striking originality and beauty. The long display room is furnished after the open-air effect of the Parisian boulevard places, where the people of the fashionable word gather beneath awnings in the shade of the trees and dine and gossip.

Here are shown all the latest varieties of the new "inverted flower pot" hats and all the other designs that fashion has decreed as proper for women's wear this spring.

Another section of the millinery department is on the first floor, where trimmings only are sold for the economical woman of taste who wishes to trim her own hat. On the first floor is also the new shoe store and the men's furnishing goods and hats.

Another new department is the furniture store on the third floor. The entire stock is new and of very latest styles, which is an advantage to buyers.

U. S. TRANSPORT LOGAN MOVED BUT IS STILL ON THE REEF

HONOLULU, March 15.—The lighthouse tender Kukui and the tugs Iroquois and Intrepid succeeded last night in moving the United States transport Logan for a short distance on the reef, where the vessel has been stuck fast since Saturday, when she went ashore.

The fact that the three tugs have succeeded in pulling the big troopship even a short distance is considered a good indication that they will be finally triumphant in their efforts to drag her from the reef.

No leak has developed in the hull, and the vessel is well sheltered in case of a storm. If the tugs cannot move the Logan today, part of her cargo will be removed.

MONEY MARKETS

St. Louis Money Market.

That the interior banks are still supplied with far more funds than the local requirements can use is still indicated by the amounts of money which are being forwarded to this central reserve city. The demand for funds, so far as St. Louis borrowers are concerned, is extremely dull. Rates are practically unchanged and there is every reason to look for a continued quiet situation.

TRADING ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE IN FAIR VOLUME

Prices Are Well Maintained; K. C. Home Telephone Makes Another Spurt.

There was a fair volume of trading at the first session of the St. Louis stock exchange Monday.

Prices were firm and in some instances higher than last week's level. Kansas City Home Telephone stock, which has recently been sharply advanced, scored another fractional gain, and is now within 1⅜ points of its highest record.

Railways preferred and common were inactive. Another block of $10,000 Railway 4s was sold at 84¾, which is unchanged from Saturday.

For the first time this year, there was no sale at the second session of the exchange. Quotations were also less numerous than usual.

SPEEDING AUTOMOBILISTS ARE ARRAIGNED IN CLAYTON COURT

St. Louisans Thought Chasing Constable Was Racing and Let Out Machines.

Several St. Louis automobilists were arraigned before Justice A. H. Werremeyer in Clayton Monday on charges of exceeding the automobile speed limit in St. Louis County Sunday. These were the first arrests in a campaign just begun by the county authorities against excessive speeding of motor cars.

The men arraigned were: Talton Francis, 4421 Maryland avenue; William S. Drozda, 4139 Magnolia avenue; A. H. Handlan, 3700 Lindell boulevard; E. R. Gamercel, chauffeur for Kenneth Bryan of Kirkwood; F. W. Moore, 4914 Forest avenue, and Edward J. Lornasney.

The captures were made by Constable George Bode, who used a new and very fast automobile bought especially for this campaign against speeders. The Constable had several exciting chases along the country roads before he caught some of the men. In several instances the speeders thought the chasing Constable was another speeder who was trying to race them and they let their machines out to the utmost speed in trying to beat him.

Sheriff John Grueninger has ordered a new automobile of fast speed and as soon as he gets it he will take a hand in the war against speeders.

FATALLY SHOT; CUTS ENEMY

LUFKIN, Tex., March 15.—As the climax of a dispute yesterday between two men, J. C. Brown, an engineer, was shot and fatally wounded by J. F. Nutter, a workman.

After receiving the wounds which later caused his death, Brown attacked Nutter with a knife, inflicting injuries which may cause Nutter's death.

LIVESTOCK.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., March 15.—Receipts—Cattle, 4000; hogs, 11,500; sheep, 3000; horses and mules, 750.

Receipts of cattle today, consisting of about 2700 natives and the balance quarantine, included a fair proportion of steers, although the general quality was hardly as good as was available last Monday. The run of natives embraced a good many Kansas cattle. In this division butcher cattle were slow and inclined to a slightly lower basis, while calves ruled steady. Heifers sold up to $5.50, cows at $5.25 and calves topped at $8.25. Stocker receipts were almost too limited to make a market. Quarantine supplies run mostly to steers, including a full train from Texas, with fed steers selling at $5.75. A full load of Mississippi cows changed hands at $4.90. The general market is quoted draggy and a shade lower.

SHEEP—The market was slow and draggy all day, with prices on a 10c lower basis. The offerings were principally Colorado and Western lambs and they were not very good and hard to sell. Good to choice native lambs were quotable at $7.25@7.75, yearlings at $6.25@6.75, mutton sheep at $5@5.50 and bucks at $3.75@4.50.

The mule market opened with very little change from last week. Not many buyers reported on the market for mules and dealers were slow taking the offerings off the hands of the commission interests.

EXTREMELY DULL MARKET ON WHEAT

Prices Sag Moderately Under Small, Featureless Trade—Corn Weak.

There were no new features to the situation in wheat Monday and under a light and indifferent trade, prices dragged along in a sluggish and uninteresting manner. The market was extremely dull throughout and values rested at somewhat easier levels during most of the session. The close was ½c to ¾c lower for the day.

The opening was slightly lower, disappointment being general among the bears as a result of the easier cables. Liverpool wheat closed ⅝d to ¾d lower, which was a poor response to our steadiness of Saturday, and at the start of today's local session there was quite a volume of scattered selling among disheartened longs. There was no change reported in crop conditions, the outlook, favored by good weather and other factors, still being very encouraging. Receipts in all positions were sharply smaller, the decreased arrivals at Minneapolis and other points being partially accounted for by delayed trains. Minneapolis reported an improved demand for flour and a better business in that grain, and as country offerings are very light, a rapid decrease in elevator stocks at that market is likely from now on. A dull tone prevailed in the cash markets, but prices continued high. No export demand was apparent early in the day.

World's shipments, although somewhat below those of the previous week, were quite liberal, but supplies on ocean passage decreased 544,000 bu. There was a moderate increase in the domestic visible. A fair demand set in shortly after the opening, on which prices made moderate rallies, but a dull, heavy tone again developed and prices sagged to the lower levels. Toward noon prices were dull and featureless at fractional declines, with pit trading almost at a standstill.

May wheat opened ⅛c lower at $1.14, was bid up to $1.14⅜ and receded to $1.13⅞. July wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.02⅛, was bid for at $1.02¼, was offered down to $1.01⅝ and rallied to $1.01⅞. September wheat opened ⅛c lower at 98¼c, was offered at 98¼@98⅛c, was bid up to 98⅜c, and declined to 97¾@97⅞c.

World's shipments of wheat were 10,512,000 bu, against 10,800,000 bu last week, and 11,504,000 bu a year ago. The visible supply of wheat increased 54,000 bu and now amounts to 36,995,000 bu. Wheat and flour on ocean passage amounts to 58,624,000 bu, against 59,168,000 bu last week and 60,632,000 bu last year.

FINANCIAL ITEMS

Bank clearings last week at all leading cities in the United States are $2,382,261,728, an increase of 28.1 per cent over last year and a decrease of only 6.3 per cent compared with the corresponding week of 1906. The loss compared with 1906 continues almost wholly at the East and South—it is quite large at New York, due in part to smaller security trading this year; also at Philadelphia and Pittsburg, reflecting conditions in the iron trade. There is a considerable decrease at Baltimore, New Orleans and San Francisco. At most Western cities bank clearings show an increase, notably at Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Kansas City. Average daily bank exchanges for the year to date are compared below for three years:

	1909.	1908.	1906.
March	$449,088,000	$324,256,000	$469,344,000
February	459,371,000	341,870,000	523,568,000
January	508,351,000	392,860,000	584,577,000

NEW YORK, March 15.—Milder weather, says Dun's Review, will stimulate spring sales, but general trade continues quiet. Conditions are better in the West than in the East, but everywhere still lack the desired animation, although outside of New York bank clearings this week were 12.7 per cent larger than last year and 7.7 per cent better than in 1906. The fact that in New York the clearings were 11.8 per cent under 1906 is accounted for by the continued sluggishness of the security market.

It is understood that the annual report of the United States Steel Corporation, to be made public in the near future, will show a heavy falling off in cash. This is due, it is said, to the small earnings in 1908, the expenditures in connection with the construction of the Gary plant and additions to other properties.

The cash holdings of the United States Steel Corporation have averaged about $75,000,000, and it would not be surprising if the coming report revealed about $50,000,000 cash on hand. The corporation, according to reports, spent around $40,000,000 last year for new construction in the face of the fact that the balance applicable for new construction in that year was not much in excess of $10,000,000.

DEATHS.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Louise Petersmeyer, who died one year ago, March 15, 1908.

Dearest mother thou hast left us,
And our loss we deeply feel;
But it is God who has bereft us,
He can all our sorrows feel.

The moon and stars are shining,
Upon one lonely grave,
Where sleeps our dear, good mother,
Whom we loved, but could not save.
Gone, but not forgotten.

Sadly missed by HUSBAND, DAUGHTER AND SON.
March 15, 1909.

CAMERA'S CLICK RESTORES A MIND GONE TWO YEARS

Snapping of Shutter in Hospital Awakens Dormant Memory of Lost Identity.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 15.—Association of ideas, renewed, brought back to William Childs of Brooklyn, N. Y., today his memory. Childs had not known for 24 months who he was.

Camera's Click Awakens Mind.

Childs was found muttering to himself in the vicinity of the Milwaukee hospital. His hair was long and hung in loose curls about his head. He wore a neatly trimmed beard, and his garments, long and loose, were almost clerical in appearance. He did not know his name nor address, the place where he formerly worked, or how he came to be in Milwaukee. The only clew to his identity was a card bearing the name of George Childs, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A photographer desired to photograph the man first, and he listlessly sat for it. "Click, click," the camera snapped.

The patient looked interested. He gazed at the camera and then turned wonderingly to physicians who were attending him.

"Why—why—I owned a—camera once," he said slowly.

"Yes, yes," urged the physicians, eager to draw more from him lest his mind revert to its former condition. "Go on. Tell us more."

Two Years in Darkness.

Word by word Childs' story came out.

"My name is William Childs, son of George Childs of Brooklyn. I am 25 years old. For years I was employed as chief clerk in the Broadway office of the Anthony company, photograph supplies. I do not recall how I managed to leave New York and Brooklyn. But I remember working in the office of Polk & Co., 122 La Salle street, Chicago, for some time until my health seemed about to fail me.

"I do not know, either, how I came to leave there. But the last I remember was an occurrence in the Moody Institute. I entered there two years ago to listen to a sermon. In the midst of the sermon something seemed to snap. Where I've been since, what I've done and how I managed to come to Milwaukee is more than I can tell."

LEA SIRIA, REAL COUNTESS, TO BE SUBURBAN STAR

Engaged by Oppenheimers to Create Role in New European Play.

Photographs of Lea Siria (Countess Venturini of Tuscany), whose engagement by the Brothers Oppenheimer for Suburban Garden, was exclusively announced by cable to the Post-Dispatch, have just reached St. Louis. They were accompanied by signed contracts, a new play and many interesting facts concerning Siria, obtained by Jacob Oppenheimer, who is now touring Europe in quest of stars for his summer garden stock company.

Lea Siria, christened Charlotte, is the daughter of Baron and Baroness Stern, and her father was formerly Russian Consul in New York. She is young, and of the type of beauty that harmonizes with emotional roles. Two years ago, while a belle in the diplomatic set in Paris, Lea Siria made her debut at the Theater Royal du Parc, Brussels, creating there in French, the role of Lady Chiltern in Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband." Later she starred in "Katje," the success of the season in Belgium, and one of the features of the present season at the Theater des Arts, in Paris.

Siria has never appeared in America, but speaks English fluently. She will be starred by the Oppenheimers in "Jenny," a temperamental play bought by Jacob Oppenheimer in Europe. The play will be produced for the first time on any stage at Suburban Garden.

In a letter to his brother, Sol N. Oppenheimer, manager of the American Theater, Jacob outlines the new play for Lea Siria as follows:

"Jenny, a young, beautiful girl, marries a medical student. They are in modest circumstances and live in a provincial town near London, with the young doctor's parents. When the wife becomes discontented through the failure of her husband to achieve glittering success, the parents become a nagging factor in the consequent domestic estrangement.

"The doctor, too busy to shower attentions on his wife, has a patient, a wealthy marquis, who in turn has a handsome young son. Both besiege the wife with attention. They introduce her into society and she finally plans to elope with the son of the Marquis.

At the last minute the young man changes his mind, owing to the fact that his allowance has been cut off, and cancels the elopement plans. Dressed for the trip, with the faithful husband pleading for a hearing, Jenny gets the note casting her off. Overcome by chagrin and remorse, she sinks into a collapse from which she does not recover."

"THE RED MILL" BRIGHT AS EVER AT THE OLYMPIC

"The Faith Healer" Opens at Century and "The Devil" at Garrick Tonight.

PLAYGOERS' GUIDE.

CENTURY—Henry Miller in "The Faith Healer." Engagement opens with play's premiere production this evening.

GARRICK—George Arliss in "The Devil." Engagement opens this evening.

OLYMPIC — Montgomery and Stone in "The Red Mill." Excellent return engagement presentation of bright and tuneful Herbert-Blossom musical comedy.

GRAND—Archie Boyd in "Shore Acres." Wholesome old domestic drama fairly well presented. Star's work admirable.

IMPERIAL—Joseph King's version of "East Lynne" effectively played, with Avis Paige as Lady Isabel particularly satisfying.

HAVLIN'S—"The Cowboy and the Squaw." Frontier melodrama of exciting quality, with one especially thrilling scene.

AMERICAN — New vaudeville bill, with Charlotte Parry and company in "The Comstock Mystery" as topline feature, opens today.

NEW COLUMBIA — New vaudeville bill, headed by Edna Aug, singing comedienne, opens today.

STANDARD — The American Burlesquers. Burlesque and vaudeville.

GAYETY — Clark's Runaway Girls. Burlesque and vaudeville.

THE second-season engagement of Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom's greatly successful musical comedy, "The Red Mill," with Montgomery and Stone still the stars of the production, promises to be fully as notable as its first. A big audience at the Olympic last night found the keenest delight in the offering.

It's an even choice between Dave Montgomery and Fred Stone as to which contributes more largely to the house's enjoyment. With differing methods they obtain similar results, and their team work, especially in the Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson sketch, and in the "Good-a-by, John," organ-grinding dialect act, is excruciatingly funny.

The supporting company is of excellent quality. Its more prominent members are Allene Crater, Ethel Johnson, Edward Begley, David L. Don, Neal McCay, Claude Cooper, Carl Gantvoort, Florence Quinn and Charles Dex, players who lose no opportunity for effective scoring, and the vocal and orchestral attractiveness of the offering is admirably maintained. The play's picturesque setting makes an effective appeal to the eye.

At the Century Theater this evening Henry Miller gives the premier production of William Vaughn Moody's new drama, "The Faith Healer," and the event bids fair to be of uncommon distinction.

At the Garrick tonight Harrison Grey Fiske will present George Arliss in Franz Molnar's famous comedy, "The Devil," adapted for the American stage by Alexander Konta and William Trowbridge Larned, both formerly of St. Louis. Mr. Arliss, an incomparable character actor, has scored a memorable triumph in the title role, in which St. Louisans will now see him for the first time as a star.

OPENING AT SCHAPER BROS. BRINGS OUT GREAT CROWDS

Unusual Bargains Offered in Goods That Are New and Strictly Stylish.

A treat for those who delight in pretty and stylish wearing apparel and home surroundings is offered at the annual opening of Schaper Bros., which began in all departments of the store Monday. Not only is the opening replete with opportunities to learn the spring fashions, it also offers many bargains to shoppers, who were present in large numbers at the opening.

In the suit and ladies ready-to-wear departments the principal interest was evidenced, of course, for it is in those departments that the newest fashions are on display. Handsome gowns and costumes, suits and skirts, dainty waists and millinery distinctively of the new season were tastefully exhibited in profusion and beauty.

Suits in all the prevailing shades and fabrics are shown—the popular striped prunella cloth, bengaline and button-trimmed suits. Among the waists were some in point Venise and other exquisite patterns, as well as soft batistes with Maltese lace yokes. The silk petticoats and skirts were centers of interest.

In the home furnishing department the newest and most attractive lace curtains, portieres, rugs, draperies and articles of art and ornament are displayed. In the gas fixture and china departments the entire stock is new and the offerings in art lamps and chandeliers are unusual.

Popular-priced luncheons are served in the new cafe on the third floor.
